OFFICIAL ADVICES FROM GEN. McCLELLAN.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, July 3—3:12 P. M.

A dispatch from Gen. McCLELLAN, just received at the War Department, dated "From Berkley, Harrison's Bar, July 2, 6:30 P. M.," states that he has succeeded in getting his army to that place, on the banks of the James River, and had lost but one gun, which had to be abandoned last night (Tuesday) because it had broken down; that on hour and half ago the rear of the rebels was within a mile of the army, and only one gun abandoned; then we had a severe battle yesterday (Tuesday) that we beat the enemy back, the men fighting even better than before; that all the men are in good spirits, and that the reinforcements from Washington have arrived.

ADVICES FROM FORTRESS MONROE.

FORTRESS MONROE, Tuesday, July 1.

A gunboat has just arrived here from the scene of action yesterday, the miles above City Point.

That division of our army has been fighting four days, and has retreated about 17 miles.

The fight of yesterday was most terrific, the enemy having three to our one.

The battle commenced with our land forces, and after about four hours' fighting, our gunboats got in range, and poured into the rebels a heavy and incessant fire.

This fire the rebels stood about two hours and then retreated.

Our troops have captured, notwithstanding their disadvantages, a large number of artillery pieces and 3,000 prisoners.

Among the prisoners captured is the Rebel General MAGRUDER.

The place where this last action took place is near Turkey Creek.

The retreat of the rebels last evening was with great disorder, and their loss has been very heavy, much greater it is thought than ours.

There is nothing definite, however, in regard to losses.

In the retreat forced upon Gen. McCLELLAN by the superior numbers of the enemy, I learn that he had to spike his siege guns and leave them on the field, after burning the carriages. The nature of the ground rendered it impossible to move them. (This, it will be seen, is denied by Gen. McCLELLAN himself.)

In the retreat many of our sick and wounded were necessarily left behind. There are, of course, innumerable reports and rumors here, but I send only what appears to be authentic.

FORTRESS MONROE, Tuesday, July 1.

The loss of the enemy in killed and wounded alone yesterday (Monday) is said not to have been less than four thousand, but we hear nothing definite of the loss on either side.

Gen. Sheldon's army arrived here this morning, and has proceeded up the James River. They came in vessels via Annapolis.

FORTRESS MONROE, Wednesday, July 2,—9 P. M.

The steamer Daniel Webster has just arrived here from City Point with upwards of 300 wounded on board.

A gentleman who came down in charge of them informs me that yesterday was the sixth day that the battle has been going on, with the most terrific fighting the sun ever shone upon. It has extended the whole length of our line.

We have lost a great many men in killed, wounded and missing, probably fifteen to twenty thousand.

He informs me that Gen. McCLELLAN'S headquarters are at Harden's landing to-day, and his lines extend five miles above toward Richmond. This move of the right wing of the army was predetermined upon and planned ten days ago, and would have been carried out sooner, but for certain reasons well known in the army, but which it would not be proper to state. The enemy's forces have greatly outnumbered ours in almost every action, but notwithstanding this they have been repulsed oftener than we have and their loss far exceeds ours.

Yesterday Gen. McCLELLAN is said to have captured a whole rebel brigade, and took from them several rifle cannon, and other pieces.

It is now said that we have lost very few of our siege guns, most of them having been recovered in safety.

There have been a great many wounded prisoners taken on both sides.

Our informant says that Gen. McCLELLAN and his Staff all agree that the present position of our army is far more advantageous as a base of operations against Richmond than that hitherto occupied.

The gunboats can now be brought to bear, and materially aid in carrying on the work.

Some of our regiments have suffered terribly, while others have but little. The New-York Fifth suffered terribly. They made a most heroic struggle, and made great havoc among the enemy. About one-half their number are killed, wounded, and taken prisoners. They were in the fight at Cold Harbor, and fought against desperate odds.

Our left wing was engaged yesterday, July 1, up to 2 o'clock, with the enemy, mostly with artillery.

The enemy's force, gathered from prisoners, who were members of Beauregard's Western army, was 185,000 men, whilst our effective force did not exceed 85,000.

The Richmond Dispatch, of Monday, announced the death of Gen. "Stonewall" JACKSON, and of Gen. BARNWELL RHETT, of South Carolina.

ADVICES RECEIVED IN THIS CITY.

A person arrived in this City last evening from the field of battle before Richmond, having left there on Tuesday evening, July 1, at 9 P. M.

At that time Gen. McCLELLAN'S advance was three miles northwest of Hardin's Landing, and within fifteen miles of Richmond.

The enemy was terribly repulsed in the battle of Monday, which was sanguinary in the extreme. We were attacked at four different points, and summarily repulsed the enemy three, when they pressed HEINTZELMAN'S left very hard, but SUMNER went to his relief, and they were finally repulsed with great slaughter. HEINTZELMAN captured eight guns and a whole brigade of rebels, 1,600, including their Colonels—PRESTON, of Louisiana, ex-Congressman LEAKE, of Georgia, and McGOWAN, of South Carolina.

Our transportation was all safely removed but seventy-five wagons, which were burned in camp.

The enemy's attack, on Monday, was fierce in the extreme. Kearney, Hooker, Richardson, Sedgwick, Smith and McCall participated.

The reserve, under McCALL suffered severely, and Gens. McCALL and REYNOLDS were probably taken prisoners, as they were missing Tuesday night. Gen. MEADE is severely wounded, and Gens. BURNS and SYKES slightly.

Stonewall JACKSON is undoubtedly killed. Gen. McCLELLAN, after the fullest investigation, credits the report; all the prisoners corroborating it.

The rebel General J. R. ANDERSON was mortally wounded in the action at Savage's Station on Sunday.

On Monday night intrenchments were begun and prosecuted as rapidly as possible. The first boat of reinforcements arrived just as our correspondent left. Supplies were also coming in in abundance.

Our total loss in the whole six days' terrific fighting, from Wednesday up to Monday night, is about twelve thousand, seven thousand five hundred of which were lost in the battle of Friday on the right.

Col. McQUADE of New-York; Col. CASS, of Massachusetts; Maj. PATTERSON, of Pennsylvania, and all the field officers of the Duryea Zouaves heretofore reported killed or wounded, and many others, are alive and well.

OUR FORTRESS MONROE CORRESPONDENCE

OLD POINT, Wednesday, July 2, 1862.

I did not write you yesterday, because the reports were coming in so thick and contradictory, that, without having time to thoroughly sift them, you would be just as likely to receive wrong as right information. What little I am now permitted to tell you is, therefore, reliable; for I have taken pains to obtain it from trustworthy eye-witnesses, or from parties who ought to be thoroughly well posted.

Whatever may be the impression in New-York there is but one conclusion arrived at here by all intelligent people, in spite of all that the army, pedlers and other skedaddling croakers have to say, and that is that the terrific battle which has been raging for the last four or five days has exhibited the most masterly strategy on the part of McCLELLAN, and bravery in himself, his officers and his men. So far from there being anything like defeat in his position, it is eminent success, and the enemy, without intending it, could not have better contrived to play into his hands.

I have just been on board the George Washington, which arrived this morning with 811 sick and wounded; among others, Gen. MEADE, and Brig.-Gen. W. A. GORMAN, of SEDGWICK'S Division—the former wounded very severely by the fragment of a shell passing through his body, and the latter prostrate by sickness. I have had a long and interesting conversation with one of the patients—a Captain of the Twenty-third Pennsylvania, and a man of great intelligence—and I was glad to find, not only in the facts he advanced, but in the cheerful and confident view he took of the dreadful struggle now going on, a full corroboration of the opinion so earnestly sustained by the TIMES and its correspondence.

The whole affair is simply this: As soon as McCLELLAN discovered—by the bold raid of STUART near the White House, and other indications—that the enemy had an intent upon that point, he at once came to the conclusion to turn that to account; and, by luring them on to a spot that could be of no ultimate use to them, and too far removed from his own base of operations, concentrated his forces on the James River, where he could have the aid of our gunboats—the terror of the rebels. For this reason—and long before any descent was made upon PORTER'S right wing—Gen. McCLELLAN had caused to be removed to his centre all the army stores, provisions, &c., from the White House, and all the rest by transports down the York River, leaving but a small portion there (variously estimated at from $5,000 to $50,000, though probably nearer the first sum) to be destroyed, in the event of the enemy approaching sooner than they could remove it.

THE RECENT GREAT BATTLES.

Map Showing Richmond, Fort Darling, the Line of the James River, the Present Location of Gen. McClellan, and the Scene of the Recent Great Battles.

So certain is this, that many days elapsed before there was any demonstration at the White House, loaded vessels were seen coming down the York River and up the James, with what intent people did not then know, though they do now. All this being arranged, orders were given for PORTER'S wing to fall back, add he was doing so when attacked by the rebels. The result was that, after great slaughter on both sides, McCLELLAN has reached the very spot he intended on the James River, with all his equipments, and allowed the rebels to go into the very trap he had prepared for them. Does this look like defeat?

Much excitement prevailed here yesterday (Monday) when news came of the bloody work of the last two days, and the information that our army was on rations which must soon be exhausted. This fear is now, however, entirely removed. Boats, loaded with provisions, are rapidly going up the James River in abundance, and twelve vessels had already unloaded when my informant left, which was at 6 o'clock last evening. I was also informed that Gen. McCLELLAN is in a strong position, under cover from gunboats, and able to hold his own until reinforcements come. The latter we know are rapidly on the way to him—though whence and in what number I am not at liberty to say. Well sustained in the position he now holds, there can be no doubting his success.

Some people here are contemplating not only the possibility but the probability of the rebels venturing down the peninsula as far as Yorktown, and even further. It is almost to be hoped they will have the foolhardiness to do so. They might thereby gain the glory of shedding more human blood, but they will only be rushing on their own destruction. Shut up between the York and James rivers, without a place afloat to confront our gunboats on them, it is difficult to see how they could either hold anything or sustain themselves there, while every man taken from their forces to go there is only increasing McCLELLAN'S chances of entering Richmond.

It is the province of those of your correspondents who were on the battle-field to give the details of what passed under their own eyes. I am merely giving you impressions derived from those who actually took a part in the fights, and who betray not the slightest symptoms of despondence. They all assure me that never did a General live who commanded more thoroughly the love of his men, and one of them said, with deep emotion, that there was not a man in his army who would not die for him. Should calamity befall our noble young chieftain before Richmond, through lack of strength before overwhelming numbers—and under no other circumstances could he fail—God help the treacling politicians, who will have brought him and his country to such extremity! He has done all that man can do. He has the confidence of men, both at home and from abroad, who stand high in the ranks of war; and if disaster attends him, he responsibility not only should, but will be placed upon other shoulders than his. To know how deeply the army feel upon this subject, one should talk with them, as we correspondents are compelled to do; and you may depend upon it, a long account is being scored up against some political marplots of the Press and Congress.

Among the reports here which I have heard, but know not whether to credit or not, is that Gen. McCALL was wounded in the neck on Sunday, and is now a prisoner in Richmond; also that "Stonewall Jackson" is killed. Dr. EDSON, Chaplain of the Fourth Michigan, who is unceasing in his attentions to his men, begged me to correct the following mistake in one of your contemporaries:

Col. McQUADE, of the Fourteenth New-York, reported as killed on Friday last, was seen yesterday at the head of his regiment in good health.

Col. ROBERTS, First Michigan, also reported killed, is not dead, but only slightly wounded.

Capt. SPALDING, Fourth Michigan, also reported killed, was seen in perfect health yesterday.

Capt. R. G. DEAN, Company K, Fourth Michigan, was instantly killed on Friday last; also Lieut. T. B. JONES, Company B, Fourth Michigan, in the same engagement.

We are awaiting, with intense excitement, the result of the next two or three days; but unless something worse arrives than we have yet heard, Sixth Month must end well for us.

THE WEST AND SOUTHWEST.

SOUTHWESTERN MISSOURI.

Springfield and its Surroundings—Some Capital Traits of Greene County—Martial Law, as Administered by Gen. Brown.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, MO., Thursday, June 26, 1862.

The little town of Springfield, Missouri, is destined to be hereafter as famous as any of its larger sisters of the same name. Five armies occupied it in succession in little more than six months. Here Frémont wintered his "butternuts." Here Fremont was superseded by the still more impracticable HUNTER. Above all, here the honest, fearless, lamented LYON fell; and here he was buried. We have already too many Springfields upon the catalogue of American towns. In honor of a sterling patriot, an able General, and an honest man, let this city hereafter be named Lyon. I make the motion; who says Aye?

The City of Springfield—for, although it has less than 2,000 inhabitants, it was incorporated borough—is the capital of Greene County, the oldest and wealthiest county in Southwestern Missouri. Although this single county has subsisted five armies since last harvest, besides feeding its own numerous citizens, there is still an abundance of grain in the county, and cattle are so plenty that they sell for 2½ cents per pound as they stand. This is certainly a fertile and a lovely land. The soil is of a rich chocolate color, and feels slightly unctuous as it is rubbed in the hand. It is everywhere irrigated by springs, which are supplied by underground streams. The whole country beneath the surface is honeycombed by a labyrinth of subterranean caves and rivers. Sometimes they pour forth from the side of some rocky bluff with sufficient volume to turn a mill; sometimes they gush out in bubbling fountains, called boiling springs, though the water is cold as ice. The very well-digger is likely to find a cave where truth is said to dwell; and in some places you may put your ear to the ground and hear the water trickling below. These are called rotting springs. Above the surface are large forests, filled with small game, and in summer vocal with the twittering of birds. The forests are interspersed with prairies equally large, which undulate like the waves of the sea, and like the sea ever vary in their expression, always sublime, always beautiful, but changing their color with every twilight, now dressed in white, and now in crimson, and now in purple and now in gold. Thickly matted clumps of the beautiful hazel and the brilliant but slovenly sumach spring up everywhere, whose impenetrable shade affords a secure lurking-place for bushwhackers. And over all soft clouds which can thunder as no other clouds can, clouds whose gorgeous beauty at the close of day must surely outshine the splendor even of an Italian sunset. As for Greene County, if you would know it, imagine a continent of forest, dotted here and there by lakes of smiling prairie, with two larger lakes of irregular contour near the centre, separated by a forest isthmus. The fathoms of timber skirts the famous Wilson's Creek; and this creek, more familiarly known as the Jordan, flows through our city, dividing its inhabitants, like the dwellers in Canaan, into the Jordanic and trans-Jordanic tribes.

This is Greene County; and either, as soon as the war is ended, will flock the sturdy sons of Iowa and Illinois, whose eyes have been charmed by its beauty and fertility. The better class of Southerners will fled from the anarchy which, I think, will reign in Secessia for a time after the close of the war, and many of them will find here a resting place. Even now they are coming daily from Arkansas, running away from the Conscription Act. The rebel scouts are stationed in a long line along the border to prevent them, but Gen. BROWN, who is now in command of this District, has sent a considerable force of cavalry to Cassville, near the line; and from Cassville they have proceeded in three directions—south, southeast and southwest—to break them up. Gen. BROWN's troops move with great rapidity. They have lately had two encounters with jayhawking bands of Confederate guerrillas. The last was at Pineville, where our forces completely routed a band which numbered about 150.

Gen. BROWN has been here but a little while, yet he has won the favorable opinion of those who know him best by the manifestation of mingled firmness and moderation. He has recently issued an order in accordance with SCOFIELD's General Order No. 2, requiring every inhabitant, male and female, to take the oath of allegiance, and depriving those who refuse to take it of all rights of citizenship. They cannot even leave their premises without being liable to arrest. This order calls forth a great variety of comments. Some acquiesce cheerfully. Other men, equally loyal, complain that it puts Union men and rebels upon an equal footing. Secessionists, of course, are disgusted. They will be still more tried when his next order appears, in accordance with SCOFIELD's last General Order. Secession sympathizers will be held personally responsible for the acts of Confederate guerrillas, and if any Union citizen is shot, a fine of $5,000 will be assessed upon his disloyal neighbors. If a Union citizen is wounded, his disloyal neighbors must make up a purse of a thousand dollars for him. And they must reimburse him for all stolen property. Gen. BROWN will enforce this order strictly. If I had a family, now that my life is insured for $5,000, I should certainly get shot. Butternut-colored homespun, once very popular in this country, is now very difficult to sell. It is known as the "Secesh uniform," and is considered dangerous. KICKAPOO.

A UNION MEETING IN MEMPHIS.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Times, writing from Memphis under date of June 23, gives the following sketch of a Union meeting held in that city on the day preceding:

"The attendance was not large—not more than five hundred persons, only two or three hundred of whom were citizens, having been present—nor was it expected the attendance would be large, as the affair had been suddenly gotten up, merely for the purpose of making an inauguration in loyal political movements in Memphis.

Dr. S. P. G. BROWN, a highly respected and respectable citizen, a native of the South, an original Unionist, and one of the only five persons who voted against the secession of Tennessee, organized the meeting and introduced in its favorable attention and consideration BENJAMIN D. NARMOS, Esq., a lawyer of prominence in the South, and formerly a member of Congress from Mississippi. Mr. NARMOS was always loyal, but compelled to assume secession proclivities on account of his interests in this city, and for fear of outrages upon his family.

Mr. NARMOS spoke for nearly an hour, in a plain but forcible way, upon the rebellion, and gave a sketch of its inception, progress, culmination and decline, which was listened to with marked attention. The appended extract will give a just idea of Mr. NARMOS' speech, which is not worth reporting in full, on account of the tediousness of its leading facts and ideas.

Mr. NARMOS commenced his address by an allusion to the last political campaign and the avowed sentiments of the different parties in that contest. He said the Breckinridge Democracy had sought and helped to obtain the election of Mr. LINCOLN, and then used it as a pretext for the dissolution of the Union. Finding that the Border States were unwilling to acquiesce in the secession movement, it was determined by DAVIS, YANCEY and others, to force them into it by the commencement of actual hostilities at Fort Sumter. The war once begun, the leaders of the rebellion looked to European intervention for its successful termination. Mr. YANCEY went to England, but after a lengthy residence there was compelled to return, bringing the melancholy intelligence that cotton was not king, and that the Confederacy would have to carry on hostilities against the North without aid from abroad.

Mr. NARMOS alluded to the election of the 6th of June, 1861, remarking that it was carried on under the supervision of a Secession Vigilance Committee. The secession ticket was printed upon red paper, the more easily to distinguish those who voted against the infamous measure. Citizens of Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana were permitted to vote, provided they cast the red ballot. Boys, not ten years old, were allowed a similar privilege, under a like restriction. The whole election, said the speaker, was a regular farce; and against the expressed will of a vast majority of the people, Tennessee was declared out of the Union. He believed her still true to the old flag, and still adherent to the motto of the Tennessee here, "The Federal Union—it must and shall be preserved."

Mr. NARMOS then denounced the conscription law in unmeasured terms, as an act of tyranny and oppression, which a free people ought not to submit to. He reviewed the history of the Confederate rule in Memphis during the past year. The destruction of cotton and sugar, under the plea that the Federals would capture it, he considered an outrage upon the rights of the Southern people. Instead of coming here to destroy or capture the cotton, men from the North had come to buy it, and were paying from 21 to 25 cents per pound in gold for it.

In conclusion, the speaker urged his audience to be true to the Federal Union—the symbol of all that is glorious in the past, and the pledge of all that is hopeful in the future.

Mr. J. R. STRONG, a native of Pennsylvania, but a resident of Memphis for some years, and until lately well-known. Using views conducted him, six months ago, to Corinth, and commanded Mr. of Memphis, addressed the meeting for half an hour in a more loyal strain, urging them to remember the allegiance, the love, the duty, they owed to the Union, and the sacred obligations that patriotism imposed upon every man who had sought the protection and shared the benefits of the laws and institutions of the Great American Republic.

COTTON-BURNING NEAR MEMPHIS.

From the Memphis Avalanche, June 17.

The people living on the line of the Charleston road are kept in terror by recent raids in that vicinity. A highly-respectable citizen, who lives about fifteen miles from town, and formerly one of our leading merchants, informs us that on Wednesday JACKSON's cavalry made its appearance in force along the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, and for the avowed object of burning the cotton and punishing all who had failed to conduct themselves to their liking. The cavalry force under JACKSON was large, and seemed to be bound for District No. 8, a district in which there was considerable cotton, none of which the Confederates had had time to burn before the occupation of Memphis. This District is reached by the Macon road, and is said to contain about fifteen hundred bales of cotton. This, or at least the larger portion of it was destroyed by the Confederates on Wednesday. Two persons who were up there buying cotton were arrested and taken off as prisoners. Two other merchants of Memphis, who were also out there, were arrested and taken South. And our informant states that the Confederate cavalry threatened to take as prisoners and to destroy all the property of all persons who, on any pretext, should come to the City of Memphis. They also stated that their intention is and will be to destroy the railroad and telegraph every time they are repaired, and to prevent the working of either. Our informant, who resides in that section, is fearful that their threats will be carried out, and if they should he contemplates the worst possible results to his property. Though a Southern man himself, he doubtless the cotton-burning scheme, nor does he see the propriety or justice of a guerrilla warfare on those whose necessities require them to obtain their supplies from Memphis.

GOV. JOHNSON AND THE CLERGYMEN OF NASHVILLE.

From the Nashville Union, June 22.

Rev. R. B. C. HOWELL, Dr. SEHON, Dr. FORD, Dr. SEWRIT, Dr. BALDWIN and Rev. W. H. WHARTON, appeared on yesterday morning at the Executive office, according to appointment at the previous interview. Rev. W. H. WHARTON appeared separately from the others, and held an interesting conversation with the Governor. In consequence of bad health he was paroled for some days. The others were sent without parley, under guard, to the Provost-Marshal, Lieut.-Col. McCLURE, who is acting in the absence of Col. MCKINNEY, with instructions to that officer to release them, provided they would give evidence of their loyalty by taking the oath of allegiance, and giving bond for $5,000 each for its faithful observance. If they should decline taking the oath, to send them to the Penitentiary to remain there until arrangements should be made to convey them South across our lines; with the warning that if they attempted to return they would be regarded and dealt with as spies. The parsons all declining, they were immediately sent out to MT. CAVERT's boarding-house.

Gov. JOHNSON has issued the following excellent order in reference to persons visiting the rebel clergy in the Penitentiary:

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, June 23, 1862.

Lieut.-Col. McClure, Acting Provost-Marshal:

SIR: I have to request that you will issue stringent orders prohibiting all visitors to the members of the clergy this day sent as prisoners to the Penitentiary, except such as have special permission from me for that purpose; and I would add, this privilege should be granted only for good and sufficient reasons. I would suggest that no encouragement should be given to that secession spirit and feeling which are manifested by numerous offerings of delicacies, &c., by sympathizing rebel friends.

These men were not sent to the Penitentiary there to be kept as objects of especial attention from traitors, nor to be lionized by a class of people, who, if properly dealt with, would be allowed the privilege of expressing their sympathy only within the same place of confinement.

They are there as enemies of our Government, and as such are entitled and should receive such consideration only as attaches to a person guilty of so infamous a crime. Very respectfully,

ANDREW JOHNSON, Military Gov.

STATE OF TENNESSEE, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, NASHVILLE, June 23, 1862.

Lieut.-Col. R. W. McClure, Acting Provost-Marshal:

SIR: Rev. Drs. HOWELL, FORD, SEHON, SAWRIN and BALDWIN are under arrest, and they are hereby placed in your custody.

Should they desire to give evidence of their loyalty by taking the oath of allegiance and giving their individual bonds in the sum of $5,000 each for the faithful observance thereof, they will be permitted to do so, and their release ordered accordingly.

If, however, it is their determination not to give such evidence of loyalty, they will be committed to prison, there to remain until arrangements are completed for their transportation South, upon general lines; there to be left, with the distinct understanding that if they recross or come again within said lines during the existing rebellion, they will be considered spies and dealt with accordingly.

Very respectfully,

ANDREW JOHNSON, Military Governor.

THE GRAVES OF UNION SOLDIERS DESECRATED.

Under date of Camp Maynard, near Nashville, June 24, Col. CAMPBELL makes the following statement, which appears in the Nashville Union. It is made to correct misstatements published by one Mr. HUMPHREY. Col. CAMPBELL writes:

"On the 1st of May, in obedience to an order from Gen. DUNCAN, I stationed detachments of the Sixty-ninth Regiment O. V. I., at five different points on the line between Nashville and Columbia, and established my headquarters in a grove near Franklin. On the 9th of that month my Sergeant-Major, who is a gentleman of unimpeached character for truth, and whose statement is annexed, reported to me that the graves of Union soldiers had been rudely trampled upon and desecrated. I immediately ordered him to detail a sufficient number of men for the purpose, and dress up and sod the graves, which order he reported to me on the next day he had executed. On the same day I learned through another source, which I know is entirely reliable, that females were seen in the cemetery ornamenting the graves of rebel soldiers with beautiful shells and flowers, and at the same time dancing or playing merrily around and over the mortal remains of Union soldiers. This information naturally excited my indignation—my wrath.

On Saturday, the 10th, with a view to the safety of my command and a more efficient discharge of its duties, I marched my men into the town, took possession of the Court-house, unfurled the old flag, and made my headquarters there. In the evening I addressed the citizens in the Court-room, briefly informing them what I purposed doing and what I expected them to do. I referred, perhaps with some severity, to the conduct of the females and the desecration of the graves as a calamitous disgrace to any community upon whom the light of civilization had dawned. I emphatically notified them that a recurrence of such a breach of propriety should not take place, and that we would consider it quite as honorable to shed our blood in defending the sanctity of the grave of the humblest Union soldier as in upholding our flag on the field of battle.

The next morning Mr. MCEWEN, who pretends to be Mayor of Franklin, called on me and stated that he and others had just been out to see the graves, and that they found no evidences that they had been disturbed. Mr. HUMPHREY says that he and hundreds of others likewise went to see if my statements were true, and found that not a single grave had been trod on, thus presenting me, Mr. Editor, before your readers and the public as the defamer of the reputations of the good women of Franklin. That these gentlemen found the graves in good condition on Sunday morning is quite true, because it was on the day before that Sergeant-Maj. HALSTEAD and the men detailed, had dressed them up, and it was on the previous Friday that the misconduct of the females was witnessed. The names of the offending parties were furnished me, but as they were "indicates ladies in their teens," and daughters of respectable parents, I did not disclose them."

STARTLING NEWS FROM THE SOUTH.

The Louisville Express, which is printed in the same style as the old rebel organ, the Courier, publishes the following alarming letter, which it undoubtedly wishes might be true:

ATLANTA, Ga., Tuesday, June 17.

I write this from the famous city of the South—the city of railroads and political refugees—and send you a few items that, I doubt not, will interest your readers.

The South is full of soldiers, and there are thousands arming for the battles which we know are yet to be fought. Many here think JEFF. DAVIS' cohorts are invincible; but wait until the grand fight and we will know better. Apropos—said TALLEYRAND, as shouts rose upon the air—"Hark, we conquer!" "Who conquer?" exclaimed his associates; quoth TALLEYRAND, "I'll tell you to-morrow." There are 2,500 sick soldiers in the hospitals of this city. There has been great sickness in BEAUREGARD's army, but it is healthier at its present location.

JOHN MORGAN is a Colonel in the army. He is forming his regiment at Knoxville, Tenn., and will proceed thence to Virginia, where he is to succeed Col. ASHBY, whose death is lamented more than any one in the South, except Gen. SIDNEY JOHNSON. Col. MORGAN goes to Virginia by the order of the War Department.

There are upwards of 4,000 Federal prisoners at Lynchburgh, Va., who were captured by JACKSON, Gen. FRANKLIN and sixty officers, including Capt. DAVIS FRY, are in this city. They are extremely anxious to be exchanged, and abuse their own Government soundly for abandoning them to their hard fate. There are nearly 12,000 Federal prisoners in the South, and we would like to get rid of them as much as they would like to leave us. Upwards of five hundred of these taken at the battle of Shiloh, and who had been confined at Macon, were paroled the other day and started through our lines. Gen. MITCHELL, at Huntsville, for some cause unexplained, refused to receive them, and they were returned to Macon. They broke wonderfully during the march, and their imprecations were terrible against the United States Government. Those five sick ones were left here, of which, at the end of the week, only seven were alive. This climate will kill half of the prisoners if they are confined during the Summer.

J. J. ASTRAVES, lately a United States Marshal in Fleming County, Ky., was hung as a spy the other day in this city.

The oat crop in the South is a total failure; only a half a crop of wheat, but the corn is most promising. It is now in tassel, and from present indications enough will be produced to feed our army and cattle for five years.

ITEMS FROM THE SOUTH.

GEN. PRICE.

Personne, the correspondent of the Charleston Courier, thus describes Gen. PRICE and his army:

"As few people have in idea of the character of the man, I give you a hasty pen and ink sketch, as he appeared to me during a brief interview. He is over six feet in height, with a frame to match, full but not portly, and straight as an Indian. His carriage is marked with dignity, grace and gentleness, and every motion bespeaks the attitude and presence of the well-bred gentleman. He has a large Websterian head covered with a growth of thick white hair, a high broad, intellectual forehead, florid face, no beard, and a mouth among whose latent smiles you never fail to discover the iron will that surmounts all obstacles.

The army of Gen. PRICE is made up of extremes. It is a heterogeneous mixture of all human compounds, and represents in its various elements every condition of Western life. There are the old and the young, the rich and poor, the high and low, the grave and gay, the planter and laborer, farmer and clerk, hunter and boatman, merchant and woodsman—men, too, who have come from every State, and been bronzed in every latitude, from the mountains of the northwest to the pampas of Mexico. Americans, Indians, half-breeds, Mexicans, Frenchmen, Italians, Germans, Spaniards, Poles, and, for aught I know, Hottentots—all mixed in the motley mass who have rallied around the flag of their noble leader. It is a gathering of the clans, as if they had heard and responded to the stirring battle-call of my poetical friend, Harry Timrod.

Nor is this wonderful army less picturesque in point of personal attire and weapons.

Every man has come from his homestead fitted with the best and strongest that loving mothers, wives and sisters could put upon him. And the spectacle presented as they are drawn up in line, whether for marching or inspection, necessarily forms an arabesque pattern of the most parti-colored crowd of people upon which human eyes ever rested. Some are in black—full citizens' dress, with beaver hats and frock coats; some in homespun drab; some in gray, blue and streaked; some in nothing but red shirts, pants, and big-top boots; some attempt a display with the old-fashioned militia uniforms of their forefath-ers; some have hunted hence from their 'outer walls' in the rear; some would pass for our friend the Georgia Major, who used to wear nothing but his shirt collar and a pair of spurs.

'Some are in rags,
Some in tags,
And some in velvet gowns.'

Take them all in all, they rival those fantastic shapes that hang upon the walls of memory in a poet's dream."

A RAP AT BEAUREGARD.

A correspondent of the Grenada Appeal pitches into Gen. BEAUREGARD for expelling newspaper correspondents. He says:

"It is believed by some that Gen. BEAUREGARD has been induced to issue this unjust and tyrannical order by Gen. BRAGG, the most waspish officer in the army, or by some one of the swarm of gaudy butterflies who bask in the sunlight of his presence—many of whom are volunteer aids or officers whose merits have not been duly appreciated by the independent writers of the day. The truth is, the characters to whom I allude are the bane of the army. There is hardly a general officer in the service who is not surrounded by a multitude of volunteer aids (with sash and sabre, the latest style of riding,) who follow in the train of their chiefs like a comet, and who, though ornamental, are seldom useful. For the most part they are young men who have wealthy parents, and who have not the patriotism to enter the ranks and perform the duties of a true man and a soldier. They are pert, insolent and impudent; they ride fine horses with gay trappings, use an immense amount of gold lace, swear like a trooper, and render themselves generally disagreeable and ridiculous. This is true not only of the volunteer aids, but of many officers whose heads have been turned by their sudden elevation, and who think they are required to exercise their power every hour in the day, lest somebody forget what 'mighty men of valor' they are. These characters are generally known in the army by the vulgar but expressive name of squirts."

EAST TENNESSEE.

The correspondent of the Mobile Register from Chattanooga, June 12, says:

"The threatening position of the enemy's forces in the vicinity of Cumberland Gap and the southern portion of Kentucky near the State line indicated that a movement will soon be made toward East Tennessee. The enemy, reported to be 20,000 strong, near Boston, Ky., have lately been reinforced by twenty pieces of artillery. A simultaneous movement of the enemy up the Sequatchie Valley by Will's Valley to this place would certainly jeopardize East Tennessee, and, if successful, give the enemy possession of Cherokee, Ga., and dangering Atlanta. It is the intention of the enemy to effect an entrance into East Tennessee either by Wheeler's or Big Creek Gap, probably the latter, which is east of Cumberland Gap. The importance of holding Chattanooga is obvious, as it is the key to Virginia and Georgia.

A letter from Chattanooga, of the 16th, says:

"A force of 8,000 of the enemy is advancing by Pikeville to Kingston, on the Tennessee River, to fall upon the rear of Gen. KIRBY SMITH at Knoxville, and they unite their force with the Federal troops reported in Powell's Valley. We have direct news from Gen. SMITH this morning that the enemy is falling back before the advancing columns from Powell's Valley to Big Creek Gap. While this was going on MITCHELL is moving in our rear in the vicinity of Battle Creek, waiting to fall upon his prey.

Knoxville, Tennessee, is under martial law. The Editor who holds BROWNLOW's sceptre, having experienced its delights in a midnight arrest and a lodging in the guard-house, soliloquizes thus upon the new order of things:

"We have got martial law, and we feel disposed to return thanks for it just as Cuffy did. He was a pious negro, and always returned thanks for what he had on his table, but always mentioned his wants also. Some wags, who knew that he was short of potatoes, provided themselves with a basketful, and when Cuffy returned thanks for what was on the table, and added, 'Mighty good dinner, Mass' Lord, if I only had a few potaters,' down came a shower of the coveted tubers, playing smash with Cuff's scant delf-ware. The pious negro, without changing his attitude, unhesitatingly continued his prayer—'Dem's em, Mass' Lord—only jes luff em down a little easier next time.'

We are very thankful to our Government for martial law, but hope they will 'luff down a little easier' on us next time.

REBEL REPORTS FROM NEW-ORLEANS.

From the Grenada (Miss.) Appeal.

From gentlemen who left New-Orleans and arrived in this place, we have late and reliable information in regard to the condition of affairs in that unhappy city. Our informants are well-known business men, were present at the capture of the city, and remained there till an opportunity of escape was offered a few days since, which they hastened to seize and fly the tyranny of the bleer-eyed monster who has rendered his name a synonym for cowardice, brutality and cruelty. The stories which have been circulated in regard to the oppression and severity of Yankee rule have not been exaggerated. Infatuated with lust for plunder, and gloating over the prospect of filling their pockets with the rich spoils of a conquered rebel city, they entered New-Orleans to find the coveted treasures either removed to points of safety in the interior, or lying in great heaps of smouldering ashes upon the desolate levees and along the unfrequented streets. The people from whom they expected glad shouts of welcome, sat gloomily at home with closed doors, or wandered listlessly about, silent and unsymp[illegible] spectators of passing events. The conquerors were baffled at every turn. With all the worst passions of their coarse natures inflamed, a system of tyranny, deceit and oppression was inaugurated, the like of which has no parallel in the history of modern warfare. The most exemplary citizens are arrested and thrown into prison without cause, persons are taken up on mere suspicion, charged with being conspirators, tried by mock courts-martial, and condemned and executed, private property, wherever found, is seized and appropriated to the use of the Yankee officers, ladies are insulted and treated with every indignity which the fiendish malignity of a brutalized New-England soldiery can devise. In a word, nothing is left undone which can add to the misery and suffering of the people.

Our informant represents the soldiery which garrison New-Orleans as the most ignorant, degraded and miserable set they have ever seen. While the officers lived in the most luxuriant style, and spend their time in reveling and licentious enjoyment, the men are half fed, badly clothed, sick, filthy and disaffected. Some regiments which have been more than a year in the service have never made the acquaintance of a paymaster, and it is not an uncommon thing to see them begging for bread-tickets of passers-by in the streets. They have even been known to beg of negroes, by whom they are regarded as objects of pity rather than hatred.

BUTLER and his officers live in a state of complete isolation. They occupy the St. Charles Hotel, from which they never venture forth, except under escort of a strong guard. Since first the threshold of this once popular establishment was profaned by the brutal BUTLER, no Southern guest has entered the St. Charles. The drawing-rooms no longer ring with the merry laughter of gay Southern belles, and the long empty corridors echo only the measured tread of the sentinel who guards the troubled slumbers of the tyrant. The portals of decent society in New-Orleans are closed and hermetically sealed against the entrance of Yankee ill-breeding, and, still to avenge themselves upon the people of New-Orleans, they have been growing, [illegible] in every kind of incivility, without the least regard to the proprieties of life or the usages of society. Drunken officers may be seen thronging the sidewalks in front of the St. Charles daily. As ladies no longer frequent that street, it is given up to quadroons and courtesans, who are the only female associates of the Lincoln officers. Our informant has himself seen high officials in the Yankee army seize and embrace negro women on the street in front of Gen. BUTLER's headquarters.

The only commissary stores which were found in New-Orleans on its occupation by the Yankees, were a lot of condemned beef. It was this beef—utterly unfit for use—which BUTLER caused to be distributed to the "starving poor." This act of characteristic benevolence and charity has been made the subject of a vast amount of blowing in the Yankee Press, and some of their most enterprising pictorials have illustrated this last and greatest feat of Yankee generosity by a cut in which the saintly PICAYUNE is represented as feeding the hungry multitude out of the abundance of a sale-to-slaughter.

No better illustration of the animus of the North in prosecuting a war of conquest is to be found, than the fact that along with every Yankee army goes a "mercantile corps," whose province and duty it seems to be to stand back until the military have shaken the trees well, then step in and gather the fruit. For example: BUTLER issued a proclamation forbidding the circulation of Confederate money; whereupon the merchant corps, of whom PICAYUNE's brother is said to be a prominent member, set about buying up the notes at a heavy discount. These notes were then sent off by agents representing themselves as true friends of the South, to points in the country, and invested in sugar, molasses and cotton. The planters were ready enough to receive them—first, because they had confidence in their ultimate redemption; and secondly, because they knew their crops would be confiscated if they fell into the hands of the enemy. In this way a considerable quantity of sugar and molasses was secured. But to the credit of the planters be it said, that the prospect of raising cotton in any but the most limited quantities is very poor indeed. In exposed places, where the military failed to destroy the staple, the planters themselves had applied the torch, and everywhere could be seen rising in curling wreaths toward Heaven the smoke of this voluntary oblation upon the altar of patriotism.

The Yankees claim they will get a thousand bales in the neighborhood of Baton Rouge, but the most authentic information from that quarter renders it questionable whether they will be able to secure a fifth of that number. There is no cotton for the Yankees in Louisiana—none of the last crop left—none growing.

Our informants corroborate the report of the steadfast loyalty of the people, and their irrevocable determination to resist every attempt of the invaders to re-establish commercial intercourse with them. A circumstance occurred at Bayou Sara, last week, which deserves to be recorded to the eternal credit of the citizens of that place. Knowing the scarcity and high price of salt at that point, a Yankee merchant shipped two hundred sacks upon the steamer Empire Parish, a regular coast packet. The citizens, hearing of the fact in advance of the boat's arrival, collected at the wharf, and refused to allow her to land at all, and she was compelled to return to Port Hudson. They preferred paying fifty cents a pound for salt, to receiving it gratis from the hands of the despised race, who are prosecuting this war solely for the purpose of securing the trade of the South.

HOLLY SPRINGS.

The Appeal has the following regarding the Federal evacuation of Holly Springs:

"In the engagement some days ago, near Tallahatchie Bridge, seven Federals were killed and seven wounded. Two of the wounded were taken prisoners. One of Col. JACKSON's cousins was captured by Federals but paroled at Lagrange. All his messages had either been delivered or destroyed before his capture.

Some four or five citizens of Holly Springs proved themselves traitors and disloyal during the occupation of the place by the Federalists. It is the purpose of the Federals, as announced by one of their number at Holly Springs, to operate against Grenada and Columbus with a force of 40,000, thus flanking BEAUREGARD. If the war is not ended by Fall, it is their intention to wage a war of extermination against all male inhabitants of the South."

JERE. CLEMENS.

The Atlanta Commonwealth thus heralds the defection of one of the shining lights of the Southern Confederacy:

"The numerous admirers of the gifted Alabamian, (Jerre. CLEMENS,) will heard with pleasing of deepest regret that he has forsaken the Confederate cause, and given in his allegiance to the Lincoln Government. He was in Huntsville at the time of its capture by the Yankees, and made no effort to escape. Only a few weeks after their arrival, he became very intimate with the commanding General, and now goes about the streets, representing the Southern cause in its worst light, and endeavoring to persuade his friends to join with the Federal cause. So far he has only found four of the citizens of Huntsville who were so destitute of principle and honor as to link their destiny with the destroyer of our homes and our peace. This comes from a source entitled to the highest credit."

A CURIOUS ADVERTISEMENT.

The following advertisement appears in the Memphis Avalanche:

$5,000 REWARD.—The Mayor of the city, by chance, came in contact with members of No. 5 Engine Company, who robbed him of his watch. This I am satisfied of. I, therefore, request that the honest members of No. 5 call at my office for the purpose of reorganization. The No. 5s have for a long time been looked upon as a parcel of thieves and robbers, therefore the honest portion of them will please call at my office for reorganization. JOHN PARK, Mayor.

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

Gen. VAN DORN is in command of the rebel forces at Vicksburgh, superseding Gen. LOVELL. He also commands the Department embracing all Southern Mississippi and Eastern Louisiana.

Northern Mississippi and Alabama are assigned to Gen. RUGGLES. The latter General was one of the first to desert the Federal army and join the rebels.

Advices from Galveston to May 23, says: "The city is not to be surrendered. Active preparations are making for its defense. Infirm men, women and children leaving are threatened by a Federal war vessel."

DEPARTURE FROM BALTIMORE—ARRIVAL AT HARPER'S FERRY—ENCAMPMENT ON BOLIVAR HEIGHTS, ETC.

Correspondence of the New-York Times:

CAMP ASPINWALL, HEADQUARTERS TWENTY-SECOND REGIMENT, N. Y. S. M., BOLIVAR, NEAR HARPER'S FERRY, VA., Tuesday, July 1, 1862.

The Twenty-second Regiment, N. Y. S. M., again pays its respects to its friends through your columns. We entered our City regiments at the foot of the class, but are now up head! As the Leader says in its columns, the Seventh is giving concerts in Baltimore, and Col. REGAN is spending his Summer vacation with his friends of the Thirty-seventh in the same city! Yet we will not speak slightingly of our worthy friends. We can now afford to be magnanimous! If there is anything we can do to promote the interests of the Thirty-seventh, we are ready to lend it a helping hand.

At reveille on Thursday, the 19th ult., the order was issued to gather together all our traps and prepare to leave Patapsco Bay, and the noble-souled, patriotic and winning-mannered fair ones of Baltimore. (No! erase that last clause! Let me not forget, in the ardor of rhetoric, to be truthful. Let me rather aver my pity for that blindness and stubbornness of heart which has led otherwise gentle, beautiful women so to deport themselves, that for many a long day New-York patriots will scarcely esteem an introduction to a Baltimore belle in the light of a compliment.

But we obeyed orders with exceeding alacrity. Our cooks prepared a day's rations with a celerity that would have pleased and astonished a man of the Southern Un-fed-a-ration. (I believe that is the new name for the starving experiment of JEFF. DAVIS.) Our boys, too, moved quickly; knapsacks, haversacks, canteens, all were filled. Tents were struck, accoutrements donned, and a last look cast at Patterson Park. As the men passed from camp, Col. MORGAN, whose illness had made it necessary to remove him to a neighboring house, looking from his window, declared himself, with great earnestness, proud of his boys, and determined to be their leader if the day of battle came to them, even though he were carried on a litter at their head. A kind-hearted, gentlemanly, and every way efficient man, we love him, and shall hail his daily expected return with rejoicing.

Our halt was made at Harper's Ferry, where now for ten days we have been stationed, pursuing with renewed activity the various duties of soldiers' camp life. What though it is warmer here than in Baltimore? What though our battalion drill takes place on a hill-side, in whose grassy carpet lie hidden sharp fragments of old wire fences, to trip up the unwary soldier, or jam his feet and legs! Is there not a compensation in every thing? The glorious scenery of high hills, rolling [illegible] and [illegible], far-stretching forests, grassy mounds, dells, valleys, and blue arch spanning all—are not these rather to be desired by men of taste and intellect than a cool harbor where the concomitants of civilized life alone meet the gaze? Then, too, the nearer approach to the enemy is gratifying to us, who have deserved the satirical appellation of "Home Guards," for never did braver hearts and abler bodies unite in any man than are found joined in some of that regiment. Twenty-second Regiment, (which) from the time it left New-York on the [illegible] day, has been growing, [illegible] in every kind of incivility, without the least regard to the proprieties of life or the usages of society. Drunken officers may be seen thronging the sidewalks in front of the St. Charles daily. As ladies no longer frequent that street, it is given up to quadroons and courtesans, who are the only female associates of the Lincoln officers. Our informant has himself seen high officials in the Yankee army seize and embrace negro women on the street in front of Gen. BUTLER's headquarters.

The only commissary stores which were found in New-Orleans on its occupation by the Yankees, were a lot of condemned beef. It was this beef—utterly unfit for use—which BUTLER caused to be distributed to the "starving poor." This act of characteristic benevolence and charity has been made the subject of a vast amount of blowing in the Yankee Press, and some of their most enterprising pictorials have illustrated this last and greatest feat of Yankee generosity by a cut in which the saintly PICAYUNE is represented as feeding the hungry multitude out of the abundance of a sale-to-slaughter.

No better illustration of the animus of the North in prosecuting a war of conquest is to be found, than the fact that along with every Yankee army goes a "mercantile corps," whose province and duty it seems to be to stand back until the military have shaken the trees well, then step in and gather the fruit. For example: BUTLER issued a proclamation forbidding the circulation of Confederate money; whereupon the merchant corps, of whom PICAYUNE's brother is said to be a prominent member, set about buying up the notes at a heavy discount. These notes were then sent off by agents representing themselves as true friends of the South, to points in the country, and invested in sugar, molasses and cotton. The planters were ready enough to receive them—first, because they had confidence in their ultimate redemption; and secondly, because they knew their crops would be confiscated if they fell into the hands of the enemy. In this way a considerable quantity of sugar and molasses was secured. But to the credit of the planters be it said, that the prospect of raising cotton in any but the most limited quantities is very poor indeed. In exposed places, where the military failed to destroy the staple, the planters themselves had applied the torch, and everywhere could be seen rising in curling wreaths toward Heaven the smoke of this voluntary oblation upon the altar of patriotism.

The Yankees claim they will get a thousand bales in the neighborhood of Baton Rouge, but the most authentic information from that quarter renders it questionable whether they will be able to secure a fifth of that number. There is no cotton for the Yankees in Louisiana—none of the last crop left—none growing.

Our informants corroborate the report of the steadfast loyalty of the people, and their irrevocable determination to resist every attempt of the invaders to re-establish commercial intercourse with them. A circumstance occurred at Bayou Sara, last week, which deserves to be recorded to the eternal credit of the citizens of that place. Knowing the scarcity and high price of salt at that point, a Yankee merchant shipped two hundred sacks upon the steamer Empire Parish, a regular coast packet. The citizens, hearing of the fact in advance of the boat's arrival, collected at the wharf, and refused to allow her to land at all, and she was compelled to return to Port Hudson. They preferred paying fifty cents a pound for salt, to receiving it gratis from the hands of the despised race, who are prosecuting this war solely for the purpose of securing the trade of the South.

HOLLY SPRINGS.

The Appeal has the following regarding the Federal evacuation of Holly Springs:

"In the engagement some days ago, near Tallahatchie Bridge, seven Federals were killed and seven wounded. Two of the wounded were taken prisoners. One of Col. JACKSON's cousins was captured by Federals but paroled at Lagrange. All his messages had either been delivered or destroyed before his capture.

Some four or five citizens of Holly Springs proved themselves traitors and disloyal during the occupation of the place by the Federalists. It is the purpose of the Federals, as announced by one of their number at Holly Springs, to operate against Grenada and Columbus with a force of 40,000, thus flanking BEAUREGARD. If the war is not ended by Fall, it is their intention to wage a war of extermination against all male inhabitants of the South."

JERE. CLEMENS.

The Atlanta Commonwealth thus heralds the defection of one of the shining lights of the Southern Confederacy:

"The numerous admirers of the gifted Alabamian, (Jerre. CLEMENS,) will heard with pleasing of deepest regret that he has forsaken the Confederate cause, and given in his allegiance to the Lincoln Government. He was in Huntsville at the time of its capture by the Yankees, and made no effort to escape. Only a few weeks after their arrival, he became very intimate with the commanding General, and now goes about the streets, representing the Southern cause in its worst light, and endeavoring to persuade his friends to join with the Federal cause. So far he has only found four of the citizens of Huntsville who were so destitute of principle and honor as to link their destiny with the destroyer of our homes and our peace. This comes from a source entitled to the highest credit."

A CURIOUS ADVERTISEMENT.

The following advertisement appears in the Memphis Avalanche:

$5,000 REWARD.—The Mayor of the city, by chance, came in contact with members of No. 5 Engine Company, who robbed him of his watch. This I am satisfied of. I, therefore, request that the honest members of No. 5 call at my office for the purpose of reorganization. The No. 5s have for a long time been looked upon as a parcel of thieves and robbers, therefore the honest portion of them will please call at my office for reorganization. JOHN PARK, Mayor.

AFFAIRS IN UTAH.

[illegible] to Protest the Route—Meetings of the Governor and Assembly—The Anathemas of the Administration Same the Nations Stream to the New-York Times:

Salt Lake City, Friday, April 25, 1862.

When this will reach New-York it will be exceedingly [illegible]. For it is given out that the mail [illegible] are to run between Fort Bridger or Green River and Sacramento, each Gen. Maxwell [illegible] along to scare the Indians, as it is supposed [illegible] drives of their wives, and [illegible] to be true, there must have been a grand piece of [illegible] stolen wives to report to death, [illegible] with the aborigines, and somebody ought to [illegible] it. If it be true it will be a good thing for the [illegible] and, as the old rocks like this, to be discussed for a month or two through Indian demonstrations, and especially in an eventful time like this. [illegible] we have the telegraph, but this is limited to the [illegible], compared with the mail. And if the mail cannot run, is there any certainty of the lightning continuing to flash along the wires? If postal communication be stopped for a month or two, it will be a serious injury to many people besides contractors.

[illegible] believed that the stoppage will be but temporary, and that the mail carriers will get into operation some plan of pushing the mails through. For piles of mail matter to lie for months [illegible] will divert traffic to the Isthmus. Indeed, the Quicksilver, or the nearest lake of the season, and one from which the public would be very well pleased to be spared.

[illegible] a week or two there will be some 200 teams on hand bound from Saco for the Missouri River [illegible] the Mormon emigration thence to this Territory. Now the owners and drivers of these teams would doubtless jump at the chance of taking along, for a little cash, any moderate freightage of mail matter that will have accumulated at Green River, and depositing it at Laramie or wherever the coaches from the East venture to. But for the letters and papers coming this way, what hope have we? Patience must sustain us. Westward the road is clear and the mails run regularly, and the late appropriation of $1,000,000 bright to speedily reopen the whole route.

The "General Assembly of the State of Deseret," closed business for the present after a session of four days. The Assembly meets again on the first Monday in January next, which will be immediately after the adjournment of the next session of the Territorial Legislature.

The business done during the four days was simply such as was considered necessary to set the State organization on its legs, without any indication as to what propositions would take place; such as locating the seat of government, constituting elections and the duties of certain officers, entitling the laws of the Territory to the new State, and two or three acts relating to judicial matters.

As mentioned in my last, the State was organized under the Deseret Circular, with semi-annual sessions of each county court.

The officers elected by the Assembly are as follows:

Senators to Congress—Wm. H. Hooper and George Q. Cannon.

Secretary of State—D. B. Wells.

Treasurer—David O. Calder.

Auditor of Public Accounts—Wm. Clayton.

Attorney General—Lucius Mann.

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court—Elias Smith.

Associate Justices—Zerubbabel Snow and Seth M. Blair.

Judge of First Circuit—Erastus Snow.

Judge of Second Circuit—John N. Ray.

Judge of Third Circuit—Wm. J. Appleby.

Judge of Fourth Circuit—Jesse Haven.

Judge of Fifth Circuit—Wm. Hyde.

From the tenor of the proceedings of the Assembly, it appears that the intention is for the State Organization to be grafted on the Territorial, and naturally grow out of it. There seems to be now no "abolitionist" in view, but it is the supposition, evidently, that the territories be not granted by Congress, to continue both organizations "harmoniously," until [illegible] or an improvement [illegible] brought on by the "progress of human [illegible]." There is no talk anywhere of secession. The new party does not take that line. It is the boast of the whole Mormon people that they are for the Constitution, and from this it may be inferred that in the event of another collision between the Mormons and the National Government, at a future time, the Salt Lake folks, unlike Jeff. Davis and his tribe, would profess to stick up for the old Constitution and the old flag, and if so, they would not hesitate to declare their "secession" as being violence to that constitution, and that flag. Such I infer from what I see and hear.

Immediately after the adjournment of the State Assembly, the heavens dried up and fine weather has prevailed. The prolonged storms have made plowing from a month later than usual, and so busy is every farmer whom one meets, that he can scarcely stay to return a civil answer.

But all this night on the mail route east, Senator Wilson would doubtless be this have been on his way to Washington, D. C.

Great Salt Lake City, Friday, May 2, 1862.

This city has been the scene of some excitement and considerable interest for the week past, and all in connection with the Eastern mails. The contractors urge that the Indians have become so hostile that the stages cannot run. But then, contradictorily, the telegraph continues in successful operation. And there are a few, no, not a very few, who are loud in expressing the belief that the trouble, and the stoppage of the mails, are exclusively the work of white [illegible], and that the aboriginal red skins, as well as a [illegible] gentlemen, should have their fair chance at the bar of public opinion, though the result should shock our prejudgment.

As the stages, with their burdens of letters and newspapers, had indubitably run foul of snags of some kind or other; as the mail agents and employes gave unmeaningly cold comfort to the expectant writing and reading public, in regard to the probable resumption of mail carriage, and as the Hon. W. H. Hooper, Senator elect from the "State of Deseret" to the United States Congress, being disappointed in a [illegible] ride by mail-coach, must go some other way, to endeavor the early admission of the new State [illegible] the Union, therefore an escort of twenty or [illegible] mounted men was extemporized by those interested, to accompany the honorable Senator expectant through the perilous district, and until he should reach the country of secure staging. The Senator, accompanied by Mr. Crosby W. Ware, a Mormon missionary on his way to enlighten the European [illegible], and escorted by the said mounted company, under the command of Robert T. Burton, left this city on Saturday, and at last accounts the party were struggling with the deep snows in the mountains between this place and Bridger.

Acting-Governor Fuller entered heartily into the secret business, thought it a very proper and good thing, addressed the men previous to their departure, and promised to use his influence for the payment of their expenses by the Government.

Negotiations were entered into with the mail-agents, and the public were informed, by notice at the Post-office, that the mails would be sent East with the escort. But the agents finally came to the conclusion not to forward any mail by Mr. Hooper and his escort, but to wait until Federal soldiers came up. Many and bitter were the comments passed upon this determination, the thought of a needless continuation of mail deprivation goading on the sufferers to a great degree of severity, and I am afraid the mail conductors have not gone ourselves to bed for several nights.

However, the War Department came to the rescue, by a telegram to Brigadier Young, on Monday night, authorizing and requesting him to raise, arm and equip a company of cavalry for ninety days service on the mail and telegraph route between Forts Bridger and Laramie, and to continue in service until United States troops could reach the scene of difficulties.

On Wednesday, the Company, consisting of Capt. Lot Burr, two Lieutenants, one First Sergeant, one Quartermaster's Sergeant, four Sergeants, eight Corporals, two musicians, two farriers, one saddler, one wagoner, and seventy-two privates, with nine baggage wagons, encamped outside the city, and on yesterday fairly got away to the mountains. The men are a fair mixture of elderly and young heads, rough-and-ready looking fellows, not a martinet in the Company, inured to labor and mountain life, rough riders up and down the mountain, and most of them passionately fond of horseflesh, with probably a slight sprinkling of experienced soldiers from European armies. Of uniform and drill, nothing need be said, but there are probably a considerable proportion of fair shots and some dead ones in the Company. The arms—rifles of many kinds—Sharpe's, Yager, Mississippis and Europeans. The horses, mostly California and Indian, some of them Rozinantes, owing to the unfavorable Winter and wintry early Spring, but accustomed to pick for themselves, and endued with the capacity of recruiting out of forage in a single night from a state of jackassism, where a few tufts of bunch grass are concealed.

So, fortune favoring, we look for a renewal of mail communication in a month.

The other night, five prisoners in the Penitentiary [illegible] that they had dug and bored for the window that it was useless to pursue, as they would not be found, and they departed to bid clear farewell to the wicked city. Nevertheless, any patriotic citizen, who will secure the prisoners, may receive $200 for their reward. The Penitentiary is a miserable [illegible], contains specimens of stone, wood, and mud, and is in rather a dilapidated state. Uncle Sam furnished the money for its erection, and the question is, who shall keep it in an efficient state for the safe keeping of prisoners? It lies between Uncle and the Territory, and, as is usual, the case between two stools, there is room for a fall, and the Penitentiary crumbles and the prisoners go free, though proscribed.

A drying breezy time continues, and, notwithstanding the wet Winter and Spring, farmers and gardeners are complaining of the drought, and fear that crops of their seeds will not vegetate, unless rain soon come, or irrigation be resorted to. But irrigation is reluctantly commenced so early in the season, as the mountain streams are exceedingly cold. The favorite way is to make the seed furrows run the water in, and, when dried a little, sow the seed and cover. Gradually moisture from beneath rising by capillary attraction.

A young lad named Lattimer, a few days ago, while riding across the country "beyond Jordan," met a formidable enemy in the shape of a large wild-cat, or California tiger, as the species are popularly termed, which immediately attacked a large dog the boy had with him. The little fellow was unarmed, but he had his lasso, and made good use of it, fastening the creature to a sage-bush, by a lucky throw, till it quit hold of the dog. The boy dismounted, and applied his boot-heel to the cat, which quickly released itself, and attacked the boy, who swiftly sprang into the saddle, and made good tracks for home, the creature pursuing and making desperate leaps at the boy. The latter, however, again brought the cat to, the boy dragging it along a quarter of a mile, when slashing the ferocious animal dead, he dismounted, but found the tail, whereupon his spur was brought violently in contact, which quite sobered a few minutes, insuring a victory for the brave lad. The creature was over three feet in length.

Disfranchisement as a Punishment for Treason.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The Missouri State Convention has adopted an ordinance disfranchising all citizens of that State who, since the 10th of December last, have engaged in rebellion against the United States Government. An ordinance of similar character had previously been rejected by the Convention by a vote of nearly two to one against it. Discussion has produced this remarkable change.

This mode of punishing treason commends itself to the common sentiment of the country as eminently just and appropriate, and I am surprised that it has not commanded more attention heretofore from our law-makers and statesmen. The penalties of crime should always be personal, so far as it is possible with safety to the State to render them so. Such is the inherent principle of Christianity, and such is the growing sentiment of civilization, which draws its enlightenment and humanity from the Christian faith. We do not need to enforce these propositions. It is the universal refrain of religious preachers and teachers, that "the soul that sinneth, it shall die." The crimes of the father are not required to be expiated by the son. The husband's sins are not to be atoned for by legally imposed hardships on the wife.

The genius of our own Government is avowedly against bills of confiscation and attainder. Why? Because such acts of punishment reach not only the offender, but his innocent and often wholly helpless offspring. They punish not only the guilty, but the unoffending, in the second, third and all future generations. This is not policy—it is not justice—it is not humanity. And it is an atrocious calumny upon the loyal millions of the United States, whose instincts recoil from the proscriptive and sweeping confiscation bills discussed in Congress, to charge that their opposition to such punishment of traitors arises from a latent and criminal sympathy with treason.

In thousands of cases in the rebel States, it will be found (as it is in the Northern and loyal States) that the wife, not the husband, is the source of the fortune—be it large or small—of the family. Changes in the form of the patrimony, and accumulations arising from natural increase and profits, will gradually swell upon the husband's hands, and he at length will be the affluent owner of a fortune which his skill and industry have never created. But if the man commits treason against the State, under the cruel rule of confiscation not only will the natural protector of the family lose his labor and his life, but the mother and children lose what was their own from the beginning, and what perhaps their own thrift, economy and self-denial have preserved and increased!

It will not do to say that such cases would be exceptions that ought not to stand in the way of a general rule. It is believed by those best acquainted with the composition and workings of Southern society that the existence of means in a family are quite as often due to the wife as to the husband. It is a well-known fact, on the other hand, that settlements on the wife, even from her own property, are in disorder in the Southern States, and very seldom made.

But I need not fortify the positions on this subject by an analysis of society in the secession districts. If the special facts were not as I represent them, and as I know them to be, there is enough in the general principle to vindicate the popular instincts against bills of attainder and confiscation. Their obvious result is to involve the innocent in the punishment of the guilty. And not in equal proportions either, for when a man's estate is confiscated all his children suffer, be they many or few.

But not only in the personal and moral wrong inflicted by such sweeping laws, is there strong reason to reject them. In their bearing upon society, and upon the State itself, are they most pernicious. For, first, in reducing to poverty hundreds of thousands of children, and thereby depriving them of education and culture, a serious injury is inflicted on society. The cost of almshouses and jails, and of the enforcement of penal laws, does not cover a moiety of the expense of ignorance among a people. If we add to ignorance and depravity a sense of wrong in the seizure and confiscation of their property by the Government, for no crime of their own commission—and such knowledge will surely be imparted with their mother's milk—we plant the seeds of sedition and hate that will be ineradicable, and make the new population a curse to themselves, to the State, and to mankind. It is because of these results that the tendencies of all civilized Governments are against the enforcement of the harsh measures of confiscation and attainder adopted by jealous and struggling tyrannies in ruder times.

The rule adopted by the Missouri State Convention goes to the root of the evil of treason. The first great penalty of this crime against the State is death; and that, in the case of all prime instigators and leaders of treason, should be sternly enforced. The penalty next in grade is expatriation; and to this doom might be consigned the larger circle of conspirators, too conspicuous for pardon, but not sufficiently important for impressive lessons to the country in their execution. The last and lowest penalty is disfranchisement; and in the political disability thereby imposed there is ample punishment for the great mass of citizens who, in a disloyal phrensy, have lent themselves to the schemes of wicked revolutionists. In their disfranchisement there is indemnity for past wrongs done to the country, and security against future intrusion, through the ballot-box, of the poisonous principles they once insanely espoused.

The disfranchisement of rebels removes at once the difficulty and danger so frequently insisted on, in the attempt to restore the Union upon the basis of the Constitution. "How can we permit Mississippi to become again a State in the Union," inquires one, "when her Legislature may immediately return to their seats, as Senators, Jeff. Davis and A. G. Brown, who were expelled as traitors?" "How can we let Georgia come back, in her original sovereignty, if she may at once restore to the National Councils such arch-rebels as Toombs and Iverson?" These questions are not wisely propounded, because an offended nation has an account to settle with these individuals which will prevent any reappearance on their part on the Senatorial stage. But not, they, nor any like them, can be returned to plague the country under the rule adopted by the State of Missouri. It will be left to loyalists alone to reorganize State Governments in the seceded States, and to represent those States in national affairs. To traitors will be adjudged the painful and life-long humiliation of standing by the sacred are that protects them, but forbidden by the unclean sin of treason to approach the ballot-box or touch again the sanctuary of patriots. Have we not here ample retribution for the crime of rebellion, and need we turn into chaos the social organization of eleven States? Need we bring millions of innocent and helpless children to poverty and crime without perceptible profit to the Treasury of the nation or to mankind, while upon the persons of traitors we can assess a lasting and salutary punishment for their crimes.

MARTIAL LAW FINALLY ABROGATED.

The following letter has been addressed by Hon. S. P. Chase, Secretary of the United States Treasury, to E. Pevine, Esq., Treasurer of Maryland:

Treasury Department, June 20, 1862.

Hon. E. Pevine, Treasurer of the State of Maryland:

Sir: Your letter of the 16th inst. enclosing my draft, as Secretary of the Treasury, on you, as Treasurer of the State of Maryland, for the full amount of direct tax apportioned to that State by the Act of Congress of Aug. 5, 1861, less the 15 per centum allowed for assumption and payment of the State, was duly received. I have made the proper draft, which will be prepared for payment as proposed by you.

Permit me to express my sincere gratification that Maryland has been the first State to make full cash payment of her quota of the direct tax. The prompt act of Pennsylvania, which preceded that of Maryland by a few days, was by credit for advances earlier made, as well as partly by cash. The other States are promptly following, and all, I am sure, partake of the satisfaction I cannot but express on seeing Maryland now, like Maryland in the days of the Old Line, coming forward with purse and sword to the defence and support of the American Union.

With great respect, S. P. CHASE,
Secretary of the Treasury.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Meeting of the Chamber of Commerce—Patriotic Resolutions Adopted.

A regular meeting of the Chamber was held yesterday, Prescott Hall Butler in the Chair. The following new members were admitted: Morris Franklin, Geo. G. Hayes, Oliver Harriman, Edward S. Jaffray, Alfred Lockwood, James Low, Henry N. Titus, Christopher Y. Wemple. A report from Judge Mason, in relation to the Commercial Convention held in Glasgow last year, was read and referred to a Committee consisting of Messrs. J. D. Jones, M. H. Grinnell, F. S. Lathrop, C. H. Marshall and Thomas Thomson.

Mayor Opdyke then made a few preliminary remarks touching the war news received yesterday, and concluded by offering the following preamble and resolutions:

On the 16th of April, 1861, the Chamber of Commerce declared its sentiments in regard to the duty of loyal citizens of the United States to sustain the Government in its efforts to suppress a wicked and unprovoked rebellion, then but recently commenced.

In accordance with the sentiments at that time expressed, and in the discharge of the like obligations of duty to the country, this Chamber does hereby

First—That it will continue to sustain, by its influence with the commercial community and to the fullest extent of its means, the National Government in a vigorous and determined effort to maintain the integrity of the Union, and effectually to put down rebellion.

Second—That in the recent appeal made by the President to the loyalty of the country for additional military forces, the Chamber recognizes the patriotism and energy which should secure confidence in his fidelity to the Constitution, and in his determination to preserve the National honor.

Third—That this Chamber will cordially unite with other bodies of loyal citizens in any measures calculated to give efficiency to the military and naval power of the Government, and to preserve and maintain the character of the community for patriotism and loyal devotion to the Union.

Be it further resolved, that a Committee of —— members be appointed by the Chair to consider and recommend to the Chamber such measures as they may deem advisable to give practical effect to this expression of the sentiments of the Chamber.

After a few remarks from Frederic M. Warren, Esq., in favor of the resolutions, they were adopted unanimously, and the following gentlemen were appointed on the Committee: Mayor Opdyke and Messrs. Stevens, Babcock, Duer, Low, Marshall, Sturgis, Blunt, Wetmore, Dodge, Minturn, Roberts and Royal Phelps. The previous action of the Board in reference to an Assay Office in this City was confirmed, and Messrs. Babcock, Dodge, Gallatin, King and Minturn were appointed a Committee to visit Washington to urge the matter upon the attention of Congress.

Street Commissioner's Office.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

Concert by the Grammar and Primary Schools of the 20th Ward.—Wednesday night, rainy as it was, could in no wise deter the friends of the soldiers from patronizing an entertainment prepared for the benefit of widows and orphans made desolate by the war; and the Academy of Music could never hold forth more popular inducement to the lovers of music and poetry than drew the tremendous audience that witnessed it. Six departments of the public schools of the Twentieth Ward were represented, comprising in all six hundred well trained performers. Drills, tableaux and music, vocal by the young ladies and gentlemen, and instrumental by Dodworth's Band, made up the main attraction. To enter into detail of the excellent manner in which each and every one of these performances was conducted is unnecessary, but the military evolutions, first by the boys of Grammar School No. 22, and afterward the "Zouave Drill," by the young ladies of Grammar School No. 23, were so remarkably appropriate, and elicited such unqualified applause, that great praise must be accorded to their instructors. The "Wreath exercise" was also a peculiar feature of the entertainment, and one which exhibited striking perfection in methods of the drill. Mayor Opdyke presided, and numbers of distinguished persons were present. The "Tableaux" at the close depicted: "The Seasons," "Taking the Veil," "The Sculptor's Dream," and best of all "The Wounded Soldier." The pupils were at each divertisement costumed in character. The exercises continued till a very late hour, and the Committee of Arrangements must certainly find their exchequer amply filled. Much good may it do the widows and the orphans of our self-sacrificing soldiers.

Commissioners of Charities and Correction.—A regular meeting of this Board was held yesterday, President Draper in the Chair. A report was made from the Committee of the Whole and adopted, giving the number of vagrants transferred from the City Prison to the Workhouse during the past month as 460, of whom 151 are there for the first time, 71 the second time, 75 the third time, 43 the fourth time, 69 the fifth time, 65 the sixth time, 8 the seventh time, 4 the eighth time, 64 the tenth time, 2 the twenty-fifth time, 14 the fortieth time, 23 the one hundredth time; 150 of these were females, and 530 were males. The receipts of the Commission for the two weeks ending to-day, amount to $1,228 74, including $120 from the Public Administrator for board of a deceased inmate at the Almshouse, $247 36 from the New-York Hospital for board at Small-pox Hospital, and $432 25 for work at Workhouse. The following is the regular weekly statement: Remaining June 21, 1862, 6,526; admitted, 2,175; died, 21; discharged, 1,675; sent to Blackwell's Island, 446; sent to State Prison, 6; remaining June 28, 1862, 6,853; increase, 15. Bellevue Hospital, 561; Lunatic Asylum, 776; Almshouse, 1,364; Penitentiary, 541; Workhouse, 959; Small-pox Hospital, 21; Randall's Island, 784; Randall's Island Hospital, 205; City Prison, 299; Second District [illegible]

[illegible] Arrest of two Female Thieves.—Officers Chelius and Byrne, of the Eighth Precinct, yesterday arrested two females named Margaret Warner and Anna Fearon, who, while the complainant of Rockine Gaces, of No. 72 Wall-street, are charged with having stolen from him the sum of $140 in gold. The complainant says he went to the house of one Jeanette Burrow, at No. 98 Mercer-street, late on Wednesday night, with the sum of $200 in gold. When he left he had nothing. He acknowledged having spent $60 in one way and another, and charges that $140 were stolen from him while in the house above-named, and he says the prisoners have stolen the money. They were taken before Justice Kenny, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, and after examination, were committed to prison for trial.

The Races on the Union Course To-day.—The opening races of the five days' meetings on the Union Course, Long Island, commence to-day. There will be three races during the day, the entries for which, as given in yesterday's Times, comprise many of the best blooded horses in the country. There will probably be the largest attendance ever seen on the Union Course, and to add to the attractions of the occasion, the military of the City, which takes part in the parade to-day, have been invited to be present, and on the conclusion of the parade will attend in large force. The most direct route to the Course is by the Brooklyn Central and Jamaica Railroad, which runs cars from the Atlantic-street Ferry, Brooklyn, every five minutes.

Zeta Psi.—The Zeta Psi Fraternity, one of the most prominent of the many secret college associations, has been holding a special Convention during the week at the Cooper Institute. Delegates were present from eight different colleges, besides a large number of alumni. It was ascertained that nearly one-fourth of the active members of the Society two years since, are now in the army in various capacities, from privates to colonels. The business of the Convention being finished, it adjourned to meet at the Parker House, Boston, Dec. 30, 1862.

Barnum's Museum.—In another column will be found an entertaining advertisement, which sets forth at length the attractions offered by Mr. Barnum for the big and little folks of this City and vicinity to-day. Dramatic performances will be given at every hour of the day after 10¾ A. M. Little Nemo, the tall man and fat woman, the learned seal, and the beautiful aquaria will also be shown from early till late.

Accidentally Drowned.—Coroner Rankey held an inquest, yesterday, upon the body of Michael Welch, a native of Ireland, aged 20 years, who accidentally fell into the water from Pier No. 6, East River, and was drowned before assistance could be rendered. A verdict of accidental death was rendered.

Accident from Burning Fluid.—A lady, residing at No. 240 East Thirteenth-street, whose name is reported to be Mrs. Kreisner, was so seriously burned yesterday morning, by the explosion of a fluid lamp, that she died soon after. She was filling a lighted lamp at the time of the occurrence.

A Probable Suicide.—A woman, 18 years of age, named Mary Murray, made a desperate attempt yesterday to commit suicide, at No. 22 Grand-street, by taking a large dose of oxalic acid. She was immediately conveyed to the City Hospital, but the doctors say she cannot recover.

Found Drowned.—The body of a male child was found yesterday in the dock at the foot of Canal-street. Coroner Rerdt held an inquest upon it. The cause of death could not be ascertained. The Jury rendered a verdict of "accidental death."

Arrest of Liquor Dealers.—Twenty-six unlicensed liquor dealers were arrested, yesterday, in the Thirteenth Ward, and held to bail by Justice Scanlan, in the sum of $100 each.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

A Remarkable Occurrence.—At an early hour yesterday morning some men passing along the Canton-street main, on Fort Greene, heard a sound coming from a well in the vicinity, which caused them to halt and make an investigation. Upon looking into the well they discovered a woman sitting upon a cross-beam some 70 feet below the surface, who begged to be taken out. The Police were notified, a rope obtained, and the woman was drawn out in safety, and apparently uninjured. When asked how she got into the well, she stated that her name was Catherine Griffin, and that she was employed as a servant at No. 25 Sands-street; that on the afternoon before she went to New-York to see some friends, and while there drank freely of intoxicating beverages. She started for home after dark, and while in a Fulton ferryboat, a young man, whom she had never seen before, induced her to walk to Fort Greene; there he attempted to take some improper liberties with her person, when she ran away from him, and accidentally fell into the place where found. This well is 80 feet deep, about 4 feet in diameter, is walled with stone, and has long been out of use, but has about 10 feet of water in it. Over the top is a stone slab, and through it a hole where a pump formerly was inserted. Over this hole there has been a stone slab, and the place has been reported several times by the Police as a dangerous nuisance. The woman was found seated upon a cross piece a few feet above the water. When the storm of Wednesday night is borne in mind, the story told by the woman that she fell to the spot where found—a distance of 70 feet, and without receiving serious injury, the whole affair seems to be a remarkable one. The Police are endeavoring to unravel it.

Serious Accident.—A Mrs. McCue, employed in the Linseed Oil Factory, corner of Front and Washington streets, met with a terrible accident yesterday morning. Some of her clothing got caught in the machinery, when she was whirled round with great violence several times by a revolving shaft, and was not rescued until both legs were broken and she had received other severe injuries. The injured woman has a husband in the Eighty-eighth Regiment, and was at work in the factory to help support her four children.

LAW REPORTS.

The Pilot Commission Case—Certiorari.

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM.

Before Justices Ingraham, Leonard and Barnard.

The People ex rel. Ralph Noble vs. The Pilot Commissioners—This case has been frequently stated in the Times.

The relator obtained a writ of certiorari to bring up for review the proceedings of the Board of Pilot Commissioners, in revoking his license as a Pilot.

The Court at Chambers, holding that the relator's remedy was properly a rehearing before the Commissioners, superseded the writ. Appeal was taken to this branch of the Court, where it was now held, per Barnard, J., that the judgment below was correct and should be affirmed.

This Court would not assume that upon a rehearing before the Commissioners that body would necessarily adhere to their previous decision; on the contrary, it would assume that if that body was convinced on a rehearing that the former proceedings were irregular, or that the former decision was erroneous, either upon the facts or the law, it would promptly reverse its former decision. The remedy of a rehearing being given, the writ of certiorari should not be granted until that remedy is exhausted.

H. R. Cummings for relator; Wm. Allen Butler for respondents.

The Way to Coney Island—A Contest for the Monopoly.

SUPREME COURT—SECOND DISTRICT.

Before Judge Lott.

The Coney Island Plank Road Company vs. The Coney Island Railroad Company.—This case has been before stated in the Times.

The plaintiffs obtained a preliminary injunction restraining the defendants from running cars over the road from the Brooklyn City limits to Coney Island. They claimed that they had acquired the right to appropriate for the purposes of their plank road what was formerly called the "new road," running from Brooklyn to Coney Island, and that the defendants without right had laid their track along said road, interrupted travel and otherwise interfered with their rights, and that if such acts were continued, and cars allowed to run upon the railroad, serious, if not irreparable, damage would be sustained.

The defendants, moving to dissolve the injunction, denied that the plaintiffs possessed any exclusive right in the road mentioned, or that they had acquired any right to appropriate and use it as claimed. They also insisted that the plaintiffs could obtain adequate relief by an action for damages; that the acts complained of were no, more than trespasses, and that it was now too late to obtain an injunction. The motion was argued June 30, and decision was now rendered discharging the injunction, with costs.

Jenkins, Opdyke & Ackerman, and H. C. Murphy, for motion; Sommers & Johnson, and G. T. Jenks, opposed.

Storage—Tender of Lien.

MARINE COURT.

Before Judge McCarthy.

Patrick Murray vs. A. Y. Vanamerin et al.—This action, which was reported in the Times of Wednesday, was brought to test the validity of a sale to the defendants of pontoon stone by Martin A. F. Lynch, to whom it was intrusted by the plaintiff, as alleged, for storage.

[illegible] made no tender of lien for storage, either before or after the sale.

[illegible] Decision.

Foreclosure Court—Special Term.

Before Judge Barnard.

Stocks et al. vs. Gerlet.—Motion granted.

Lewis vs. Northrup et al.—Motion granted.

Rowe vs. Thomber.—Order granted.

O'Brien vs. Fendal et al.—Motion denied, with $10 costs to defendant to abide the event of the action.

Peters vs. Stanford et al.—Motion denied, with $10 costs to defendant to abide the event of the action.

Thursday, July 3—P. M.

The disastrous news from the army before Richmond, published in this morning's papers, though partially qualified by subsequent dispatches, produced a very decided panic in Wall-street this forenoon; the like of which we have not witnessed since the Trent affair of last Winter. In the violence of the fluctuations through the day the panic market was ahead of that occasion, because of the United States paper currency in place of Gold upon which the business of the Stock Exchange is now conducted. The printed sales at the early Board scarcely reflect the real extent of the pressure to make sales of Government Securities, as several parcels of 1881's ⅌ cents were privately forced on sale at 99¼@99⅞ ⅌ cent., while the lowest printed sales are at par ex coupon. The heaviest and most unaccountable depression was in 7.30 ⅌ cent. Treasury Bonds,

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

We have official advices from Gen McClellan's Army up to 5½ o'clock, P. M., of Wednesday. A dispatch from the General himself was received at the War Department, yesterday afternoon, which states that he had succeeded in getting his army to the banks of the James River, with the loss of only one gun, which had to be abandoned on account of its becoming disabled; that the wagon train, with the exception of one wagon was in a safe position; that we had a severe battle on Tuesday, and that we beat the enemy on Wednesday. And what is of more importance, Gen. McClellan announces that reinforcements from Washington had already arrived. These reinforcements, together with those under Gen Burnside, which embarked at Annapolis and arrived at Fortress Monroe on Tuesday, will be sufficient to insure Gen. McClellan in his new position, if not to enable him immediately to follow up his success of Wednesday, and push straight on to Richmond. The fight of Monday, partially described by our correspondents in yesterday's Times, was of the most desperate and determined character. In fact, the fighting of the entire seven days may be thus characterized. The consequent loss of life has been most fearful, but on the rebel side particularly so. The entire losses on both sides, in killed, wounded and missing, are estimated in one account at forty-five thousand, of which our proportion is but fifteen thousand, leaving thirty thousand for the rebels. Among their losses in killed are Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson and Gen. Barnwell Rhett, of South Carolina. Gen. Magruder is also reported to have been taken prisoner. Many wounded prisoners have been captured on both sides. On the whole, it appears from the latest accounts that the advantages of the fighting have been on our side, though fighting against fearful odds. The number of the rebels is estimated at one hundred and eighty-five thousand, including a large part of Beauregard's army, while against this enormous force we had opposed not more than ninety-five thousand effective men.

A Nashville correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette writes, upon what he deems pretty good authority, that while Beauregard was holding Corinth, he had several thousand laborers employed extending the Jackson and Vicksburgh Railroad from Lowashee to Montgomery, Ala., thus forming a connection with the East. Such a work completed, a glance at the map will show the facility with which the army of the Mississippi, or a large portion of it, may have been transferred to Richmond.

We have intelligence from Corinth that eight or ten companies of rebel cavalry attacked our advance guard, about two miles south of Boonville, on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, on Tuesday morning, but were repulsed by our cavalry, after considerable hard fighting. The enemy, it is stated, make daily demonstrations on different parts of our lines. From Gen. Mitchell's army we learn that fifty-five of his scouts have been captured by the rebels, taken to Atlanta, Ga., and hung.

The Cincinnati Commercial has received important information direct from East Tennessee, by way of Cumberland Gap. The persecution of the Union men continued. The property of all loyal Tennesseans in the Union army was being sold at auction, including furniture, agricultural implements, &c., no attention being paid to the necessities of their families. A distinguished citizen of Tennessee, who had been arrested and cast into a Southern jail, had died there from the effects of unwholesome food, and his remains had arrived at Knoxville for interment. Union soldiers who are prisoners at the South are dying rapidly in consequence of the tainted meat and rotten food which they are compelled to eat. Nearly all the rebel troops have been withdrawn from East Tennessee and taken to Richmond. The country is filled, however, with guerrilla bands, who are committing all sorts of depredations on Union people.

Gen. Curtis' Division is understood to be at Batesville, Ark., on short rations, and without provender for the horses and mules, besides suffering from sickness. Gen. Hindman is also menacing him with a large force of rebels. It is understood that an immediate effort will be made to aid him with men and stores.

Gov. Andrew, of Massachusetts, has given the best possible proof that he approves the call for 300,000 additional troops, by issuing an elaborate proclamation calling for the quota from that State. After bringing prominently to notice the bounties offered volunteers by the Government, the document concludes as follows: "All good citizens are respectfully requested to report forthwith the name and place of any volunteer or regimental soldier in Massachusetts—if such a one is here to be found—who, may be intentionally evading his duty by neglecting to comply with the provisions of the General Orders above quoted. Massachusetts, which has never slumbered nor slept, must now arise to still higher efforts, and pledge to all the duties of patriotism, with renewed devotion, the individual efforts, the united hearts, heads and hands of all her people."

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, two motions to adjourn over the Fourth—one to Monday, and the other to Saturday—were defeated. The House bill in relation to alterations in certain Judicial Districts was passed. The bill to establish Provisional Governments in insurrectionary districts was postponed until to-day, after brief consideration. The bill to provide a Government for the Territory of Arizona was postponed until next December. A joint resolution adjourning Congress on the 16th inst. was introduced and laid over. The bill relating to the Judiciary, providing certain rules in regard to State laws being regarded as decisions in common law in the United States Courts, was considered. An amendment was moved by Mr. Sumner, that no evidence be excluded on account of color. On a vote being taken no quorum was found to be present. A motion was made to adjourn, but failed. A quorum was then obtained, and the amendment was rejected. The Senate spent the rest of the day in Executive session.

In the House, after the consideration of private bills, a bill was reported from the Judiciary Committee providing for the discharge or trial of State prisoners. It was ordered to be printed. After some further business, the Confiscation bill as returned from the Senate was taken up, and after some debate, the Senate's amendment, in the shape of a substitute, was rejected, 123 to 2—so the bill goes to the Senate again. The vote tabling the Michigan and Illinois Canal bill was reconsidered, and its consideration postponed until the 18th of December. The Senate's amendments to the Treasury Note bill were referred to the Committee on Ways and Means. The Committee on Military Affairs were instructed to report what legislation, if any, is necessary to facilitate the granting of furloughs and discharges to sick and wounded soldiers. Mr. Dunlap, of Kentucky, failed to obtain leave to introduce a resolution censuring Gen. Hunter for his letter in reply to the inquiries relative to his "black brigade." The House then adjourned until Saturday.

GENERAL NEWS.

There was no session of the Board of Aldermen yesterday, for want of a quorum.

The Chamber of Commerce yesterday passed resolutions pledging its support anew to the General Government in its efforts to maintain the integrity of the Union and suppress the rebellion, and appointed a committee to consider and recommend for the adoption of the Board, such measures as may be best calculated to render their support effectual.

The Louisville Journal states that Capt. Jerrems, Assistant Quartermaster at Louisville, has been relieved by an order from the War Department, based on a notification in an official advertisement that no Secessionist or Abolitionist need apply for the contracts proposed.

There was a decided panic on the Stock Exchange and in Wall-street generally, yesterday, on the news in the morning papers from the army before Richmond. The fluctuations in Stocks, through the day, were from 2½ to 4 ⅌ cent. At the close prices were on the recovery. Gold went up to 110½@110¾ ⅌ cent. Exchange to 121½@122 ⅌ cent.

Discussions of the exciting war news were the order of the day in business circles yesterday. Loyal citizens evinced great regret, but no despondency; while the friends and abettors of the rebels were quite boisterous and arrogant in their demonstrations. At the Produce Exchange, the only active trade was in Breadstuffs; prices of Flour and Corn were well supported, while Wheat advanced a shade. Cotton, Coffee, Molasses, Metals, Oils, Rice, Seeds and Spices were quiet. A fair inquiry prevailed for Tallow, Hay, Hops, Sugars and Spirits Turpentine, which latter article was decidedly dearer. The freight market was rather active, and rates were very firm.

The National Natal Day.

"Through the thick gloom of the present I see the brightness of the future as the sun in heaven. We shall make this a glorious and immortal day. When we are in our graves our children will honor it. They will celebrate it with thanksgiving, with festivities, with bonfires, with illuminations. On its annual return they will shed tears, not of subjection and Slavery, not of agony and distress, but of exultation, of gratitude and of joy."

Thus exclaimed the patriot seer, "John Adams, on the adoption of the Declaration, July 4, eighty-six years ago. We could have no better motto for to-day. He saluted it, by the "All hail hereafter!" as the birthday of the Republic. We celebrate it now in the new birth and regeneration of that Republic. Now, as then, indeed, "thick gloom" hangs over our country, but the eye of faith can descry the "brightness of the future as the sun in heaven." To-day, we celebrate it not merely by the "festivities, bonfires and illuminations" whereof he speaks, but by the awful baptism of fire and blood. We have, indeed, our wonted festivities; but the real celebration to-day is along the line of battle, and where the Union hosts surround the beleaguered armies of the cursed rebellion. There are our hearts and hopes. The rest is all but show. And we "have that within that passeth show." God defend and prosper the armies of the Republic!

Gen. Hunter's Abandonment of James Island.—An arrival on Monday from Port Royal announces that Gen. Hunter has determined to evacuate James Island. This unhappy issue of the promising attempt for the reduction of Charleston is deeply painful. That city has so much to answer for in the present state of our national affairs, and has been to such an extent the prime mover in the rebellion, that we should have felt a peculiar pride in its capture. It would have been, moreover, but justice, that the seat of the war should be transferred to that Capital city of the treason. But the attempt fails, and we have only to resign ourselves to the disappointment for a while longer.

We had hoped that a secure encampment might yet be found in which our troops might remain with safety, and be in readiness to resume the attack when reinforcements could be spared for it. But it seems that no such position could be found. There was nothing left, after the failure of the recent assault upon the battery at Secessionville, but to evacuate the island, and relinquish the undertaking.

It would appear from this decision that the attempt of Gen. Benham to capture that battery, instead of being the wanton and groundless effort which it has been represented to be, was a military necessity; and that the possession of that point was essential to our continued occupation of the island. It occupies the neck of the only peninsula which James Island affords that could be commanded by the fire of our gunboats across the land; and unless that peninsula could be held, our position was precarious, if not hazardous. Gen. Hunter's relinquishment of the whole undertaking, upon the failure of the attempt at Secessionville, shows how essential that movement was, and demonstrates that it was only a well-considered endeavor to obtain a secure foothold, instead of a rash and heedless advance. It is gratifying to note that the War Department has taken the same view, and restored Gen. Benham to his command.

The Situation on the James River—Better Prospects.

Our news from the army before Richmond is up to Wednesday evening, at which time appearances were much better than at the date of our previous advices, at the close of the sanguinary engagement of Monday. The extraordinary series of battles which began with Wednesday morning of last week, on our right wing, and which raged almost continuously for the whole week along our entire line, and over a distance of between thirty and forty miles, seemed to be still unfinished on Wednesday night of this week. "On Tuesday," says Gen. McClellan, "we had a severe battle, and to-day (Wednesday, 2d inst.) we beat the enemy, the men fighting even better than before." Whether the battle was renewed yesterday, and whether this morning the strife may be still raging, we do not yet know. The main position of our army, however, at Turkey Bend, on the James River, was quite secure under the safeguard of gunboats. The good news also comes to us this morning, that by Wednesday reinforcements had arrived from Washington; and we learn, too, that on Tuesday morning a heavy column of Gen. Pope's army reached Fortress Monroe, and had immediately been pushed up the James River. This body must have reinforced Gen. McClellan by Wednesday, and doubtless rendered him abundantly able not only to hold the rebels in check, but perhaps also to assume the offensive. We suppose that other of the divisions of Pope's army will at once follow that of Shields', and that not less than forty or fifty thousand men altogether can be dispatched to the Peninsula from different points. From Gen. Burnside, strange to say, we have as yet not a word; but he is most certainly on his march to cooperate with McClellan, if he has not, as we think he must have, joined him before this time. One of our cotemporaries, last evening, gave prominence to a story from Washington that our army had "lost its siege guns and thirty thousand men;" but McClellan himself, writing as late as Wednesday evening, says he had "lost but one gun, which had to be abandoned because it broke down;" and another account states that Heintzelman captured eight guns and a whole brigade of rebels, which seems to be much more likely, judging from the latest advices. Four of the most prominent rebel Generals are reported lost to their cause—Stonewall Jackson, killed; Barnwell Rhett, killed; Anderson, mortally wounded, and Magruder a prisoner; while of our own general officers, McCall and Reynolds were reported missing on Tuesday night. The death of Jackson, which is undoubtedly a fact, as it is announced by the Richmond papers of Monday, and confirmed from our own side, will be a tremendous blow to the rebels. Of all their Generals, he was the only one who had ever assumed the offensive with success; and the successes of their army last week were entirely owing to his quick, energetic and determined action and skillful manœuvres.

The losses in the various battles, and especially in the grand combats of Friday and Monday, are reported as being very great—as, indeed, from the courageous and determined fighting of both combatants they must have been so. The prodigious figure of forty-five thousand men is the estimate made by one correspondent as the lost in killed, wounded and missing on both sides—thirty thousand of which are put to the account of the rebels. We should earnestly hope that subsequent advices may modify these figures; but, from our previous experience in reports of losses, we fear that the facts may be as terrible as reported. The splendid heroism of our men, from beginning to end, during the eight days of blood and battle, was worthy of the divine cause for which they fought and offered their lives. In the records of the world, there has been no courage more persistent and vigorous. But the fact that so many of the sons of New-York have been slain for their country's sake, will tone down the manifestations of this Fourth of July.

Of the present status of our army before Richmond, Gen. McClellan reports it as being still in excellent spirits, and since the large reinforcements have arrived it is doubtless greatly improved in confidence. On the whole, and judging from all the facts and statements that have reached us, we must say that the condition and prospects of our army on Wednesday were much superior to what they were on Monday. We should not be surprised if it were yet this week to give the rebels a blow which would effectually settle the fate of Richmond and this bloody rebellion.

The Country to the Rescue.—The City took the news yesterday with admirable spirit. The Stock market tumbled head over heels, it is true, but this amounts to nothing. It was only a panic among the bulls who had been speculating for a tremendous rise, and scattered in every direction when the wind blew from the other quarter. They were in very much the same condition as the sutlers at the White House when told that the rebel cavalry were coming. They abandoned their supplies and rushed pell-mell on board the first gunboat that offered shelter.

But the mass of the people showed no symptoms of a scare. Their first feeling was regret for McClellan's reverse; their next, that it must be retrieved. The army must have reinforcements, promptly and as many as are required. The 300,000 new troops must be forthcoming at once. We cannot stop to criticise the past—to discuss the causes of past disasters or reconcile the claims of conflicting Generals. What the country wants now is an army able to cope with the rebels. Let the colored militia of our regiments be filled up. We have most excellent fighting material,—the skeleton of a splendid and effective army. Let its ranks be filled and we shall speedily turn back the tide and put an end to the rebellion.

Rebel Strategy.

It should be remembered, whatever reverses may occur during this portion of the campaign in Virginia, that the rebels have one important strategic advantage. They are at the centre or on the smaller arc of the circle, while we move on the circumference. A distinguished Prussian officer, whose military criticism was quoted in these columns, indicated more than a month before the date of the event, the threatening possibility of a defeat of Banks' corps. The position recalled to him a well-remembered campaign on the borders of his own country—that year when Napoleon, holding Dresden as a centre, kept an overwhelming mass of the Allies in check, by moving out with tremendous rapidity from his centre, now upon one corps and then another, and defeating them in detail. Or better still, it might have reminded him of Napoleon's position in his last glorious campaign in France, before the banishment to Elba. There, moving on the smaller arc, though with a much inferior force to the whole of the Allies, he was enabled to fall upon Blucher's corps, and other corps with superior numbers and tremendous effect, and at one time seemed about to drive out in disgrace the enormous armies of the Allies. Owing to the nature of the country, and to Gen. McClellan's making the Peninsula his base of operations, together with the numerous railways behind the enemy's front, the rebel General has been enabled to have the advantage of a central position, while our line has necessarily been extended from the Shenandoah to the Rappahannock and the Chickahominy. Our connections have been difficult, owing to the character of the surface, and for some unknown reason, unity of action was destroyed by the Washington authorities in the very outset by the division of the army into separate corps. The consequences have been what might be expected.

The enemy, with a skill and vigor which we should acknowledge, even with them, have thrown, by their railroads, superior masses wherever we threatened them. They first held McDowell in check, then drove Banks out of the Valley; then falling back before Fremont (whom they outnumbered) they destroyed one of Shields' brigades, and while our divisions were calmly awaiting other attacks, either at Strasburgh, Port Royal or Fredericksburgh, they hurl their overwhelming masses on our widely separated right wing before Richmond. It is vain for us to suppose that we have any but a most skillful and determined enemy to oppose us. With them is desperation, and a very considerable military skill, and great natural advantages of position. To these we can oppose the unconquerable firmness of our soldiers, and we should oppose invention, enterprise and incessant activity. We cannot but think if Sigel's, Banks' and McDowell's corps had been "feeling" of the enemy's line as they should have done, this manœuvre of Jackson would never have been executed. We trust that Gen. Pope is going to change all that. With the taking of Richmond, or the rebel retreat to the South this advantage of a central position vanishes.

Our Army Correspondence.

The Times published yesterday morning thirteen columns of most important and interesting intelligence from our correspondents with the Army of the Potomac, in advance of all our cotemporaries. According to its usual practice of bragging loudest when they are beaten the most, our neighbors of the Herald will probably devote their entire editorial page this morning to proving that it is the only enterprising newspaper on the continent! We should not be at all surprised if its circulation (on paper) should reach 150,000!

The fact is our neighbor has been so busy for the last few weeks in bragging, that he has had no leisure for getting the news. The Times has steadily and regularly beaten the Herald on all important information from the very beginning of the war. We had the first account of the capture of the forts below New-Orleans. We published exclusively a full report of the sanguinary battle of the Seven Pines. We gave the first and only full official reports of the killed and wounded there and at Fair Oaks. We had exclusively the killed and wounded at the battle of Cross Keys, three-fourths of which were from New-York regiments, and now we have distanced our windy neighbor completely in the full, detailed and graphic reports given by our correspondents of the great battles of Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday last. Without making a tenth part as much fuss as the Herald does, the Times is habitually ahead of it in all important news.

The Herald has been hard at work trying to break down its competitors. It has been urging an exorbitant tax on newspapers, for the avowed purpose, and in the absurd hope, of crushing out its rivals. It has been forcing up the expenses of newspapers in every possible way, with the same amiable and praiseworthy object. It has sunk not less than $50,000 over and above its receipts during the last year alone, under the belief that it could thus force its competitors into expenses which it supposed they could not bear. We hope it will keep on. The game is rather a costly one, and cannot be very amusing; but if our neighbor enjoys it, we cannot object. We venture to suggest, however, that the Times succeeds very well by attending to its own business and supplying its readers with the news. Possibly the Herald might find its profit in the same policy.

It Won't Do, Old Fellow!—The Herald pretends that it received its correspondence from the Army of the Potomac, but "withheld it at the request of the War Department." This is all moonshine. The War Department made no such request. On the contrary, the Herald, in common with the Times and all other City papers, was officially informed two days ago that the restrictions imposed by the Government on news coming by telegraph did not apply to news coming by mail. And the reason given for the distinction was, that as the telegraph was under military control the Government made it, to a certain extent, responsible for whatever it permitted to go over the wires;—whereas it could not be held responsible for anything that came by mail.

The distinction was a perfectly good one, and the Government took care that the Press should understand it. The Herald was informed of it, and told that it could publish its correspondence by mail. Why did'nt it do so? Because it had none! Enough said.

Courage and Onward.

We have heard some few persons since the arrival of the unfavorable news from the army of the Potomac, who either from sympathy with the rebels, or faint-heartedness, treated the matter as decisive of the question, and declared their opinion that it was all of no use for us to try to fight further, that the new volunteers would never be furnished, and that we might as well make up our minds to accept the fact of the Southern Confederacy with the Ohio River, and the Southern line of Pennsylvania for its northern border. This seems quite too great a conclusion to draw from any facts which we have. If McClellan's army were annihilated, the Monitor taken, Fortress Monroe strictly besieged, and the rebel cannon thundering upon Washington, it would still be, we think, too great a conclusion to draw. We would be still too mighty, too high-spirited a people to yield to such dishonorable terms. For consider what this involves. It involves first and foremost the surrender of the Mississippi which has been opened by our gallant tars amid storms of shot and shell, and the crash of iron prows against wooden walls. It involves giving up to the tender mercies of the rebels not only the scattered Unionists who have made themselves known under the protection of our flag, even in the regions where secession was most poisonous, but the masses of those who have endured so long in East Tennessee, who have fought so gallantly and well in Kentucky, Missouri and Western Virginia. It involves giving up the City of Washington with all its public buildings. It involves giving up Mount Vernon, so that we and our children will need Confederate passports to enable us to stand by the tomb of Washington. It involves the triumphant sneers of the London Times and the continuous outcry against us and against free institutions of all those who hate them and hate us because we love them. It involves the triumph at home of Vallandingham and Cox, and the two Woods and those who follow them, whether covertly or openly. It involves endless disgrace and degradation for us in the future, endless strife and confusion, endless war and disturbance, the downfall of American ideas, the overthrow of republican institutions, the turning back of the shadow upon the dial of human progress. We have no fear that any thought of accepting such results will be allowed to dwell for an instant in the minds of our people. As long as our fleets hold the sea, and our gunboats hold the rivers—as long as the ports and the forts of the Southern harbors remain in our possession, and the rebels are shut out from any but clandestine commerce—as long as their currency is shinplasters, at fifty per cent. discount, while ours is bank bills and United States notes, at par—as long as our army is an army of volunteers—why should we give ourselves up to such gloomy anticipations. Such disgrace is not yet in store for us. When salt is not to be had, and pins and needles are not to be bought in the stores of New-York; when our soldiers are on half rations and without uniforms; when want and distress fill the land and stand in every door and when President Lincoln shall acknowledge, as Jeff. Davis has done, that without conscription it is impossible to keep our armies in the field, then, and not till then, will we begin to talk about giving up our hope of a restored Union of one free people, sweeping from the Lakes to the Gulf, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Till then, let us close up our ranks, and stiffen every muscle and sinew, and steel every heart, for a renewal of the struggle. Let us again in the future, as we have in the past, welcome self-denial, and make exertion and trial our companions. Let us call up the old associations which have made this day a day of remembrance, and let us show that even the bloody fields of the past year have not drained the land of heroes or chilled the love of the people for our flag "Old Glory," or for the Union which it has floated over so long, or the principles and hopes which have made it so glorious.

The Death of Capt. Lines—Further Particulars of his Disappearance.

The following additional particulars of the disappearance and death of Capt. Lines, which we announced in the Times of Tuesday last, are from a personal friend, and will be read with interest:

"The highly popular late commander of the steamship Arago has doubtless met with a melancholy fate, an event which will be learned with deep regret by a wide circle of friends and thousands of travelers, to whom the following particulars may prove interesting:

Capt. Lines had determined six months since to pass the remainder of his days on shore, and accordingly gave up his position to his first officer, Capt. Gardner, a successor fully competent to maintain the enviable reputation of his ship, adding, as he does, to the qualifications of an efficient sailor the advantages of a classical education and the manners of a gentleman. Last Winter, Capt. Lines, while in the act of ascending the gangway, (which was coated with ice,) slipped from the top and lighted on the guards of the ship, and would probably have been drowned but for the timely aid of one of the gatekeepers on the wharf. This sudden shock, however, produced serious results; frequent violent headaches, occasional vertigo, and less or more habitual dizziness. Already considerably improved, and in the hope of entirely recovering his previous health, he had lately made arrangements to pass the present Summer months in traveling.

On the 13th of June he started from New-York, and recorded his name on the following evening at the International Hotel, Niagara Falls. On the 15th, (Sunday,) at 5 P. M., he left the hotel, apparently to take a short walk; but there is every reason to believe he has 'crossed the bourne whence no traveler returneth.' It was not until ten days afterward that information of his sudden disappearance was received at New-York. The same day the writer of this hastened to Niagara Falls, and, with the most obliging assistance of Mr. Coleman, Jr., (son of the well-known proprietor of the hotel,) every means have been used (hitherto in vain) to ascertain the fate of the missing.

Capt. Lines was one of the best specimens of a class of men who have made the American merchant navy celebrated all over the world for efficiency and enterprise. He was a native of Connecticut, and went early to sea, making several voyages to the Pacific and ports in South America. About thirty-three years ago he became connected with the Havre packets. During the rebellion he commanded a vessel in the service of the Government, and was highly commended for his services in the Gulf. Strictly temperate, indefatigable, and of great nerve, he was touchwood to all attempts to the slightest approach of mutiny among his men, and a tower of strength to the sickly, timorous, and inexperienced among his officers. No man ever knew more of his neighbors; he possessed the rare gift of judgment and circumspection, and accumulated a large fortune. G. N. C.

The Rochester Democrat is informed that the body of a man was discovered in the Whirlpool, below the Suspension Bridge, by Mr. Fuller, who keeps the Whirlpool House, a mile on the bank of the river. The body is thought to be that of Capt. Lines.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

The Better Character of the News from Before Richmond.

A RUMOR ABOUT SECRETARY STANTON.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

Washington, Thursday, July 3, 1862.

THE NEWS.

The interest in the great battles before Richmond is so absorbing that everything else is practically lost sight of in Washington. The feeling is buoyant in contrast with the gloom of yesterday and this morning. The President, I learn, is cheerful, and greatly relieved from the anxiety of the past week.

SECRETARY STANTON.

There was a lively rumor on the street this morning that Secretary Seward had resigned, and Gov. Seward had been appointed Secretary of War. There is no confirmation of the rumor to-night.

REFUSED TO ADJOURN.

The Senate refused to adjourn over to Monday. There is too much work on hand to allow the usual holiday to Government officers and employes on the 4th.

CONGRATULATORY CORRESPONDENCE.

The following congratulatory letter has been addressed by the Secretary of the Navy to Flag-Officer Davis, commanding the Western Flotilla, at Cairo, Ill.:

Navy Department, June 19, 1862.

Sir: Your report of the encounter with the rebel fleet on the 6th instant, off Memphis, announcing your complete success, aided by Col. Ellet, with the ram fleet, in capturing the enemy's flotilla, has been received and read with satisfaction. I congratulate you on the virtual annihilation of the rebel naval force on the Mississippi and the surrender to you of the City of Memphis. These events are the sequel of gallant services rendered by our naval heroes and those who have been associated with them in a series of conflicts and triumphs on the Western waters, for the maintenance of the rightful authority of the Government and the integrity of the Union. You, and all who have been connected with you in this triumph, are justly entitled to the thanks of the Government and country.

I am, respectfully, your obedient servant,

GIDEON WELLES.

To Flag-Officer Charles Henry Davis, Commanding Western Flotilla, Cairo, Ill.

The following reply to the above was received from Commander Davis:

United States Flag Steamer "Benton," Memphis, June 24, 1862.

Sir: The letter of the Department of the 19th inst., congratulating myself and the officers and men under my command upon the results of the engagement of the 6th inst., has been received and read with unalloyed pleasure. The satisfaction with the success of the day expressed by the Department, and its appreciation generally, constitute at once the proof and the reward of service. I shall cause your letter to be read on board of every vessel in the squadron, embracing those not present on the 6th inst., that all may perceive that former services are not forgotten, and that the Department, in viewing present events, will cherish the remembrance of a long series of conflicts and triumphs, of which these events are the sequel.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant, C. H. DAVIS, Flag-officer, Commanding Naval forces on the Mississippi and its tributaries.

To Hon. Gideon Welles, Secretary of the Navy, Washington, D. C.

The following also to Commander Davis has been issued:

Navy Department, June 27, 1862.

Sir: Your dispatch of the 19th inst., communicating information of the capture of two batteries at St. Charles, and the removal of obstructions which have probably given us the command of White River, has been received. The intelligence of the continued success of the Navy is most gratifying; but the calamity of St. Charles is mingled with regret for the lamented dead, and sympathy for the wounded, who were victims of the fatal accident to the Mosatic, and of their barbarous opponents who fired upon them after that great calamity. The contrast between these great barbarities of a savage enemy at St. Charles, and the humane efforts of yourself and your command to rescue the wounded and disabled at Memphis is honorable to the gallant men of the flotilla, and will be gratefully remembered. The nation, honoring the memory and sympathizing of its heroes, sympathizes with the wounded survivors and the bereaved families of the gallant dead. Its noblest tributes are due to those who stand for their country and die in its cause. I am, respectfully, your obedient servant, GIDEON WELLES.

To Flag-Officer Charles H. Davis, Commanding Western Flotilla, Memphis and Cairo.

THE CANAL BILL.

A change was evident yesterday morning in respect to the vote upon the Canal bill. Several New-England members, who had voted to table it, manifested a desire to ascertain the probable cost of the works by good surveys, to be completed by the opening of Congress in December next. That definite action might then be taken, Mr. Morrill, of Vermont, who voted yesterday in table the bill, prepared a resolution directing the surveys, which found favor with many of the New-England members who had voted with him, but were really desirous to defend the Lakes, and had been influenced by the assertions of members from Pennsylvania and elsewhere that the cost of the works in question would be twenty, fifty, or even an hundred millions. Mr. Stevens, in debate, had spoken of even two hundred millions. For the purpose of testing the truth of these allegations Mr. Sherman, of Rhode Island, who had also voted to table the bill this morning, consented to move a reconsideration of the vote, in order to permit the introduction of the resolution for the proposed surveys. This reasonable proposition instantly encountered a series of filibustering movements, in which the Pennsylvania members, aided by the Messrs. Conkling, of New-York, were most prominent, numerous and active. In spite, however, of their efforts a decisive vote of upwards of one to seven-six, was obtained against a motion made for tabling the resolution for reconsideration. At this stage of the business, instead of permitting the vote for reconsideration to be taken, Mr. F. A. Conkling arrested the proceedings by moving the consideration of certain postal matters of an pressing importance, but which had been made the special order for this day. The House thereupon, by a large vote, postponed that special order for half an hour, to permit the vote for reconsideration to be taken, whereupon Mr. Conkling, aided by the opposition from Pennsylvania and the Border States, instituted a number of frivolous motions for adjournment, &c., causing Ayes and Noes on each, by which process the half hour was consumed and the special order made to take precedence of the motion for reconsideration of the vote on the Canal bill. The remainder of the day was devoted to that special order.

THE WAR BILL.

Applicants for appointments under the tax bill reach here by every train, but do little more than leave their papers. The perfected bill has not yet come from the printers. There seems to be but two prominent candidates for Commissioner of Internal Revenue. They are Joseph J. Lewis, Esq., of Pennsylvania, and

[illegible]

[illegible] Bill has not yet been put into the hands of the public printer, and will not be for several days. [illegible] will serve as an answer to very numerous inquiries.

GEN. HUNTER'S LETTER.

The reading of Gen. Hunter's letter to the Secretary of War was much enjoyed in the House yesterday. It was generally regretted that Gen. Wadsworth had not returned from his conservative mission to Fort Pickens, that he might join in the merriment provoked by the categorical answer to his resolutions of inquiry. Whatever opinions were entertained as to the policy which Gen. Hunter has adopted, all agreed in pronouncing his letter exceedingly clever.

THE FLOYD CONTRACTS.

Attorney-General Bates having given his opinion that the contracts by Ex-Secretary of War FLOYD with Messrs. Russell, Majors & Waddell, now held by Fuller & Baker, are not legal documents of the United States, and that the United States is not legally bound to pay any money on account thereof, the statements in their memorial to Congress purport to show that the Attorney-General's opinion is in conflict with the statutes, with the established decisions of the Supreme Court, and with the long continued practice of the Government of the use of discretion in his discharge of the obligations of the different Departments and the frequent recognition of this power by Congress.

THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

The Department of Agriculture is to go into operation immediately, with Isaac Newton, of Pennsylvania, as Commissioner, and Richard McCormick, of New-York, as Chief Clerk. The Department is in consequence with a recommendation of the President in his annual Message. The establishment of a distinct bureau or Department, devoted to a leading pursuit in the agricultural interest, has been discussed, more or less, for the last twenty years.

REPORTS FROM MARTINIQUE.

Information has been received at the State Department from the Consul of the United States at Martinique that under the present law all goods admitted to France are then admitted into the Colonies. Importers make a choice of tariff, either the French or Colonial. In other words, whenever the Colonial tariff prescribes a higher duty than the French tariff, drawbacks can be taken of the latter. The products of the United States imported into Martinique in American vessels, having a certificate of origin countersigned by the French Consul at the port, are admitted upon the same conditions as if taken there under the French flag, and do not have to pay the sanitary tax in France.

CONFIRMATIONS.

The Senate to-day confirmed the appointments of [illegible] Wilson, Postmaster at Clarksville, Tenn.; [illegible] Johnston, of New-York, Assistant Quartermaster, with rank of Captain. Also the following graduates of the Military Academy as Second Lieutenants of the Regular Army, to be attached to the [illegible] to take rank respectively: Corps of Engineers—Cadets R. S. McKenzie, George L. [illegible], Jr., George Burroughs, Charles R. [illegible], Jared A. Smith, Samuel M. Mansfield, [illegible] C. Wharton; Ordnance Department, Cadets [illegible] C. Chaffee, Morris Shaff, Joseph Myers, [illegible] A. Mazzi; First Regiment Cavalry, Cadet [illegible] Cowles; Third Regiment Cavalry, Cadet [illegible] J. James; First Regiment Artillery, Cadets [illegible] McRae, John Hagan, James A. Sanderson; [illegible] Regiment Artillery, Cadets Isaac Arnold, [illegible] H. Lord, Chastel N. Warner; Third Regiment Artillery, Cadets Frank R. Hamilton, James M. [illegible], Ant Bolles, Wm. C. Bartlett; Fourth Regiment Artillery, Cadet James H. Rollins; Fifth Regiment of Artillery, Cadets Rueleth Wilson, John [illegible] Bailey, Samuel B. McIntyre, Albert M. Murray.

REMOVAL.

U. U. Lacoste has resigned the appointment as Collector of New-Orleans, to which he was some weeks [illegible].

THE BOOK JOB.

The Speaker has announced the following select committees on Mr. Walton's resolutions for an investigation of the Congressional book job: Clark, New-York; Bailey, Pennsylvania; Wendall, Minnesota; [illegible], Maine; Grider, Kentucky.

FROM WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

Washington, Wednesday Evening, July 2, 1862.

THE BATTLE NEAR RICHMOND.

All day yesterday the gloom settled deeper and darker upon us in regard to the tremendous conflict which had taken place near Richmond. The [illegible] that reached us were too meagre for accurate judgment; but all felt that a fearful crisis in the history of the war had been reached, and the fate of the Republic might be trembling in the balance. The [illegible] of the Government was in itself ominous of no matter whether the cause was ignorance or [illegible] to reveal the truth.

The [illegible] of the New-York papers brought us hope. The clear and vigorous exposition of the Times, added to our knowledge that the President had been waiting for the transfer of McClellan's right wing across the James River, gave us both theory [illegible] to sustain our flagging spirits. We [illegible] with the belief that Saturday had [illegible] the crisis; and that our army was [illegible] position safe against attack and fe[illegible].

The [illegible] to us to renewed and increasing [illegible] additional troops was a fact that [illegible] reconcile with success—no logic [illegible] the Government had received infor[illegible] fighting continued through the [illegible] day; and Gen. McClellan had [illegible] forces with terrible loss of life and [illegible], and was dependent on the gun[illegible] for protection against utter [illegible] strike with consternation [illegible] and every energy of the [illegible] being exerted to guard against [illegible].

A [illegible] settled down upon the city, in[illegible] rain that continued the whole day. [illegible] were actual excitement here; [illegible] was greater when Jackson [illegible] the Valley of the Shenandoah. But [illegible] I have never witnessed, and [illegible] loyal men in plenty who ex[illegible] days to see the "Stars and Bars" [illegible] in our streets. Bankers were [illegible] stocks, and politicians prophesied [illegible] being at to the verge of the [illegible] compromise.

[illegible] on. Some remain hopeful still, [illegible] that McClellan's strategy had [illegible] success, though at a serious [illegible]; a rumor that the gunboats had [illegible] and compelled a surrender, but [illegible] a basis to give it credility. The [illegible] us with rays of encouragement, [illegible] the sparkle of a glow-worm in the [illegible] night only to make the prevailing darkness more [illegible] apparent. Again the New-York papers [illegible] words of good cheer, but less forcibly [illegible] and for we glided into the evening with [illegible] in Providence as our most cultivated [illegible] despair.

And after [illegible] this faith is simple. Though [illegible] yet the mass are confident and [illegible] may have met with a fearful [illegible]; we have called upon to encounter the allies of [illegible] in a combined assault; but we know the justice of our cause, the invincibility of our race, the [illegible] of our nation, and anticipate success from a confidence that amounts to conviction.

SENATOR BROWNLOW'S SPEECH.

We [illegible] lost no time taking this opportunity of hearing Parson Brownlow, of Tennessee, owing to the unbecoming behavior of Prof. Henry, who refused him the use of the hall of the Smithsonian Institute. It was [illegible] impossible to find a suitable room; and the [illegible] assuring one is greatly due to your fellow-[illegible] Dennis Pratt, Esq., whose efforts were un[illegible].

Mr. Brownlow spoke about two hours, and was frequently interrupted by the most vehement applause. During his recital of the terrible barbarities inflicted by the rebels on the patriotic people of East Tennessee, his indignation was frequently broken by [illegible], and his sentences were [illegible] by [illegible] which indicated tears were [illegible] to burst. His earnest appeal in behalf of the Government and for sympathizing that loyal community of the possession of their armed tyrants, was pathetic in view of the fervent sympathy not all felt that no column was needed for the whitening [illegible] citations with which he retorted the Administration for [illegible] traitors in places of trust and profit. This is the one weak spot in Mr. Lincoln's civil policy, and a practice which is working infinite mischief. It is probably due to the excessive charity and kindness of the President's disposition, and the excessive calculation and culpable culpidity of his subordinates. The Potter Committee has done great good in forcing a partial reform, but there is still an evil so enormous as fully to justify the severest rebuke.

GEN. HALLECK IN THE WEST.

I am informed by a St. Louis gentleman just arrived at Memphis, that Gen. Halleck has suffered greatly in the popular estimation by the late events in Tennessee. His campaign did not at all satisfy the expectations of his friends. Gen. Pope is held there in high esteem as an officer, as is also Gen. Wallace.

GEN. BANKS AND THE WAR DEPARTMENT.

The presence of Gen. Banks in the city recalls to mind the rumors of Mr. Stanton's retirement from the War Department, and his appointment instead. It is certain that if Gen. McClellan is seriously defeated, his friends will lay the fault at the door of the War Office, and demand a new Secretary, with a vehemence that it will be difficult for the President to resist. In that case, probably, both McClellan and the Secretary would share the same fate—the army of the Potomac receiving a new leader as well as the Department a new Chief. Certainly, if the President can ever emancipate himself from the tyranny of faction, and announce the reorganization of the Government and army, on the stern basis of official merit and unquestionable loyalty, the hour is at hand for the change.

THE PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

SENATE.

Washington, Thursday, July 3.

On motion of Mr. Lane, of Indiana, (Rep.,) the bill for the relief of certain companies of Indiana volunteers, for loss of baggage, etc., at Hatteras Inlet, was taken up and passed.

Mr. Trumbull, of Illinois, (Rep.,) moved that when the Senate adjourns it be to meet again on Monday.

This was rejected, by yeas 6, nays 27.

Mr. Grimes, of Iowa, (Rep.,) then moved that when the Senate adjourns it do so until Saturday.

Mr. Hale, of New-Hampshire, (Rep.,) said that in the condition that things were—when the whole country is anxiously waiting for news from the army—he did not think the Senate ought to take a holiday.

Mr. Grimes' motion was rejected, by yeas 14, nays 22.

Yeas—Messrs. Browning, Chandler, Foot, Grimes, Harlan, Henderson, Kennedy, King, Morrill, Pomeroy, Trumbull, Wade, Wilkinson and Wright—14.

Nays—Messrs. Anthony, Carlile, Clark, Collamer, Cowan, Davis, Dixon, Fessenden, Foster, Hale, Howe, Lane of Indiana, Lane of Kansas, Nesmith, Powell, Saulsbury, Sherman, Simmons, Stark, Sumner, Ten Eyck and Willey—22.

The House bill in relation to alienations in certain Judicial Districts was taken up.

Mr. Wright, of Indiana, (Rep.,) moved to amend so as to make Ohio, Michigan and Indiana the Seventh Circuit; Illinois, Kentucky and Wisconsin the Eighth Circuit; and Wisconsin, Iowa, Kansas and Minnesota the Ninth Circuit.

The amendment was adopted, and after further amendment the bill was passed.

Mr. Harris, of New York, (Rep.,) moved to take up the bill to establish Provisional Governments in certain cases.

Motion agreed to, by yeas 24, nays 11.

After some discussion the further consideration of the bill was postponed until to-morrow.

Mr. Sherman, of Ohio, (Rep.,) moved to take up the resolution in regard to making a majority of Senators, duly elected, sufficient to make a quorum.

The motion was disagreed to by Yeas, 18; Nays, 23.

On motion of Mr. Ward, of Ohio, (Rep.,) the bill to provide a government for the Territory of Arizona was taken up.

Mr. Trumbull, of Illinois, Rep.,) thought that it was entirely unnecessary to create this Territory. According to the census-office there were 6,482 white inhabitants there, and this looks like a bill to provide offices for a number of persons at the present time. He saw no necessity for this additional expense to the Government. He moved to postpone the further consideration of the bill until December.

Mr. Ward and Mr. McDougal opposed the postponement.

The motion to postpone was agreed to by Yeas, 23; Nays, 13.

On motion of Mr. Clark, of New-York, (Rep.,) the bill to confirm certain land grants to the State of Iowa and Minnesota was taken up and passed.

On motion of Mr. Harris, the bill for the relief of Andrew Tee Bauer, late Consul to Munich, providing additional compensation for his services in preventing the compulsory enlistment of American citizens returning to that country, after discussion, was rejected, by yeas, 13; nays, 22.

Mr. Davis introduced a joint resolution, adjourning Congress on the 10th of July. Laid over.

On motion of Mr. Foster, of Connecticut, (Rep.,) the bill relating to the Judiciary was taken up.

It provides certain rules in regard to State laws being regarded as decisions in common law in United States Courts.

Mr. Sumner, of Mass., (Rep.,) moved an amendment that no evidence be excluded on account of color.

On the question being taken, no quorum was found to be present.

Mr. Fowler moved to adjourn.

Motion disagreed to, by yeas, 10; nays, 22.

Absent—Messrs. Bayard, Carlile, Cowan, Doolittle, Kennedy, Latham, McDougal, Pearce, Rice, Thomson, Wilkinson, Wilmot, and Wilson of Massachusetts.

Mr. Clark moved that the Sergeant-at-Arms be directed to request the attendance of the absent members. Agreed to, by yeas 13, nays 22.

On a further call a quorum answered to their names, and the amendment of Mr. Sumner was rejected by the following vote:

Yeas—Messrs. Chandler, Collamer, Foote, Grimes, Harlan, Harris, Howard, Howe, King, Lane, Morrill, Pomeroy, Sumner and Wade—14.

Nays—Messrs. Anthony, Browning, Clark, Davis, Dixon, Fessenden, Foster, Hale, Henderson, Kennedy, Lane of Indiana, Nesmith, Powell, Saulsbury, Sherman, Simmons, Stark, Ten Eyck, Willey, Wilson of Missouri, and Wright—21.

The Senate went into Executive Session, after which adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Washington, Thursday, July 3.

Mr. Lovejoy, of Illinois, (Rep.,) rising to a question of privilege, said that inasmuch as the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. Wickliffe) was at the meeting in New-York, on Tuesday, and delivered a speech there, he (Lovejoy) moved that the reply of Maj.-Gen. Hunter to the resolution offered by that gentleman, (Wickliffe,) relative to the raising of a regiment of blacks be read for the latter's benefit, he, (Wickliffe,) yesterday, being absent.

Mr. Wickliffe replied that he would answer Gen. Hunter's reply at the proper time.

The House then went into the consideration of private bills.

Mr. Bingham, of Ohio, (Rep.,) from the Judiciary Committee, reported a bill providing for the discharge or trial of State prisoners. It directs the Secretary of State and the Secretary of War, as soon as practicable, to furnish to the Judges of the Circuit and District Courts a list of the names of all persons, citizens of States in which the Federal judicial processes continued, who are or may be hereafter held as State or political prisoners. Where the Grand Jury has terminated its proceedings without finding an indictment, it shall be the duty of the Judges to immediately direct the discharge of the prisoner. Every officer having the custody of a prisoner refusing to obey the order shall be subject to indictment for a misdemeanor, and punished with a fine of $500 and imprisonment of not less than six months, at the discretion of the Court. The bill also provides for bailing prisoners, and concludes with a section declaring that it shall be lawful for the President, by reason of the rebellion, and when the public safety shall require it, to suspend the writ of habeas corpus, and whenever it shall be so suspended, it shall be unlawful for any Judge to allow such a writ.

Mr. Benham said it was always thought that this Government was one of law, and that all its officers ought to act under the sanction of law. He was not disposed to press the bill to a vote.

The bill was then ordered to be printed.

Mr. Colfax, of Indiana, (Rep.,) from the Post-office Committee, reported back the Senate bill relative to Messrs. Carmuck and Rahway, with an amendment striking out $60,000, the maximum allowance, and inserting a substitute for the section under which they claim damages, on the ground that it has been once decided on by Comptroller Medill, in 1856.

Mr. Colfax gave a historical review of the case showing that, although it had been decided against by Attorney-General Black, Postmasters Campbell and Brown and Comptroller Medill, Messrs. Carmuck and Rahway claimed nearly two millions of dollars damages under a contract, which, by its terms, was not to go into operation until Congress made an appropriation for it, which had never been done. He (Colfax) said that if the contract had been made, and both with the claimants, but a thorough examination of a volume of papers had convinced him that the claim ought not to be allowed, and the Post-office Committee unanimously concurred with him.

The substitute reported by Mr. Colfax was adopted and passed.

Mr. Colfax, from the same Committee, reported the Senate bill providing that in States in insurrection, the carriers of Postmasters can be used for detections within two years after the Courts are reopened. Passed.

The House then took up the Confiscation bill, as returned from the Senate, with an amendment in the form of a substitute.

Mr. Rice, of Mass., (Rep.,) said this substitute was known as "Clarke's bill," and moved to non-concur in it.

Mr. Cathell, of Maryland, (Union,) moved to lay the amendment on the table.

Mr. Rice inquired what would be the effect if that motion should be sustained.

The Speaker replied, it would lay the bill on the table.

Mr. Chanler's motion was disagreed to by yeas 48, nays 68.

Mr. Rice's motion to non-concur in the Senate's substitute was agreed to by 8 against 113, so the bill will be returned to the Senate.

The House then reconsidered the vote by which the Michigan and Illinois Canal bill was recently tabled, when its further consideration was postponed until the 16th of December.

Mr. Bingham, from the Committee on Judiciary, to which was referred petitions from the citizens of Ohio for the expulsion of Representative Vallandigham, reported back the same with a resolution that he be not expelled, and that the petitions be dismissed.

The substitute reported by Mr. Colfax was adopted and passed.

Mr. Dunlap, of Kentucky, (Union,) asked but did not obtain leave to introduce a resolution declaring the sentiments contained in Major-Gen. Hunter's letter relative to arming of the slaves (read in the House yesterday) are eminently unjust to an American Congress—an insult to the American people and to our brave soldiers, and justly merit the condemnation of this body.

Adjourned till Saturday.

THE CALL FOR MORE TROOPS.

Progress of Enlistments in the City—Enthusiasm of Recruits.

That despondent class of the community, which seemed to have made up its mind that New-York had sent about all its spare material in the way of soldiers to the war, will find its gloomy conclusions and predictions speedily proved false and unfounded. Those who have had most experience in the recruiting business declare that never before did the prospects of rapidly filling up a large requisition for new troops look so favorable. Officers who have used their personal influence in the organization of regiments that they were unable to accompany into active service, and who are again aroused by the exigency of the moment to renewed exertion, say that men come in with remarkable readiness—men, too, of a tone and quality such as it was thought had been wholly absorbed by earlier regiments. They assert that even during the excitement which ensued upon the disaster of Bull Run, there was not a better feeling demonstrated nor more anxiety to join the army than now. This is contrary to general expectation, but it is an indisputable and encouraging fact.

The military authorities of the State have not yet quite settled their official programme; but definite orders may be expected to issue from Adjutant-Gen. Hillhouse's department before the close of the week. It is believed that in the meantime still more complete arrangements will be made to improve the enlistment system, and that many irregularities and imperfections, which have heretofore interfered with the exertions of recruiting officers, and damped the ardor of their newly-accepted men, will be effectually remedied. One thing is certain, far higher inducements than ever will be held out in the shape of bounties, advance payments, immediate subsistence, and prospective relief to families. There is no reason at all to suppose that any means will have to be resorted to, to fill up the Presidential requisition beyond the popular and patriotic plan of volunteering. More men than are required from New-York can be obtained in the same way that has sent already a hundred and twenty thousand of her sons into the field.

The City is alive again with the hum of busy warlike preparations. Enlistment stations everywhere abound, as in the startling times of near a year ago. The Park is once more dotted with tents, and the streets are sprinkled with the new uniforms of the young men who, at this, their country's second call, throw down the pen, the measure and the implements of peaceful labor, to rush to the defence of the Union. A number of companies are filling up with astonishing rapidity; when better regulations have been made for mustering in the new soldiers, these companies and others will fill up still faster. It is scarcely an advisable thing to do, to close the mustering office in White-street, as it is announced to be closed between now and Monday. To-day and to-morrow, and even on Sunday, applications may be anticipated from fresh recruits, and it is impossible in many cases for those by whom they are secured to enlist them for several days, especially when the men join in squads. This White-street office should be open all the while.

The Memorial to the President.

Albany, Thursday, July 3.

It will be remembered that the memorial addressed by the Governors of the loyal States to the President, respecting the call for volunteers, was signed by all the Governors except Andrew, of Massachusetts, and Sprague, of Rhode Island.

The memorial was drawn up by Gov. Morgan, of New-York, on consultation with Gov. Curtin, of Pennsylvania, and the responses received all contained patriotic sentiments in connection with the consent to add the names of the Governors of the other loyal States.

Gov. Morgan, this morning, received the following dispatch:

Washington, July 3.

Your dispatch just received after duty at Manassas. Add my name to your memorial.

WILLIAM SPRAGUE.

By orders from the War Department the entire authority over the recruiting service of this State is placed in the hands of Gov. Morgan, including all supplies of ordnance stores, all expenses of subsisting and mustering the troops, and all powers of commissions, organization, &c. This will leave the State authority entirely untrammeled until the regiments are mustered into the service of the United States Government, and prevent any clashing between the authorities.

The business of preparing the machinery for recruiting is progressing actively in the Department.

Why Gov. Andrew Did Not Sign the Letter to the President.

From the Boston Journal, July 3.

The fact that the name of Gov. Andrew, of Massachusetts, was not affixed to the memorial to the President, signed by the Governors of several Northern States, requesting him to make a requisition for three hundred thousand additional troops, to meet the emergency which has suddenly arisen, has naturally excited very general remark and inquiry in the community, and not a little curiosity is felt to know why the patriotic sentiment has not found expression in this latest evidence of the confidence of the people of the North in the Administration, and of their determination to insure the stability of the Union.

The facts in the case, we understand, to be as follows: At a late hour yesterday afternoon, Gov. Andrew received a telegraphic dispatch from gentlemen in New-York, requesting him to join in a memorial to the President, to be signed by the Governors of several States, and other gentlemen, asking him to make the requisition as contained in the telegraphic report of the memorial which appeared in the morning papers.

He immediately replied by telegraph that he could not permit any gentleman to affix his name to a document which he had not seen, nor would he himself sign a memorial to the President of the terms of which he was entirely ignorant.

After reading the memorial in the morning papers, the Governor telegraphed to the Secretary of War, assuring him that he cordially approved of the proposition therein contained, and at the same time he urged upon the Government that the bounty of twenty-five dollars, which the Government at the suggestion of Gov. Andrew had consented to pay to volunteers, should be paid to recruits as soon as they were mustered into companies, and that they should not be compelled to wait until regiments had been formed.

This morning Secretary Seward, Assistant Adjt.-Gen. Buckingham, Hon. Thurlow Weed, and several other Government officials arrived in this city, with whom the Governor held an interview of the Patriotic character.

The object of this visit, and the unexpected visit of Mr. Seward is understood to be for the purpose of ascertaining what measures are necessary to raise the additional force, the number of troops which will be announced in a special order, in lieu of those which are arriving or to arrive in regular order.

Gov. Andrew has received assurances from Mr. Seward that the bounty money, which Mr. Seward said had been secured to the volunteers through the President and long continued exertions of His Excellency, would be paid in accordance with his recommendation.

THE WAR IN THE SOUTHWEST.

A Successful Skirmish with Rebel Cavalry Below Corinth.

A Number of Gen. Mitchel's Scouts Hung.

Condition of General Curtis' Army in Arkansas.

Corinth, Wednesday, July 2.

Eight or ten companies of rebel cavalry, under Gen. Chalmers, attacked Col. Sanderson's advance guard, about two miles south of Bocanville, at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. Our companies made a most brilliant charge on the enemy's rear at the same time that Maj. Cone, of the Second Iowa Cavalry, made a dash in front and on the enemy's left, alarming the enemy so much that Col. Sanderson was enabled to hold him in check. About 9½ o'clock the enemy commenced retreating, but Sanderson having only the Second Iowa and the Second Michigan Cavalry, was unable to pursue.

No report of the loss is given.

The enemy make demonstrations daily, in different parts of our lines.

Louisville, Ky., Wednesday, July 2.

A passenger just arrived from the South reports that Gen. Mitchel detailed fifty-five men from different regiments for scout service, who were all captured by the rebels, carried to Atlanta, Ga., and hung. One of them, Reuben Rowell, formerly of Salem, Mass., and belonging to Col. Normon's Second Ohio Regiment, made a speech saying "he considered it no ignominy to die for his country even in that manner."

Cairo, Wednesday, July 2.

Dispatches from Col. Fitch, dated St. Charles, Ark., which works he stormed, set forth that Gen. Curtis' Division is at Batesville on short rations, and without provender for horses and mules, besides suffering from sickness. Gen. Hindman is menacing him with a large force, and unless commissary and other stores can reach him soon, his troops will be rendered incapable of duty by starvation. A regiment was called for, and transports with provisions and provender.

Col. Fitch proposes to give the troops a share of active service, having in view a very important movement upon the enemy.

Col. Fitch, having been much annoyed by guerrillas in passing up White River, arrested and retains several prominent citizens as hostages.

An agent for the Confederate Produce Loan informs the planters of Louisiana and Mississippi that those desirous to subscribe their crops can do so at a fair valuation for 8 per cent. Confederate bonds.

The steamer Atlantic arrived at Cairo to-night with 1,200 of Gen. Pemrice' brigade, who have been paroled.

Chicago, Wednesday, July 2.

A special from Cairo to-night, just received, gives the news of the arrival of nine of Farragut's vessels above Vicksburgh.

Louisville, Thursday, July 3.

Gen. Mitchel passed through this evening en route for Washington.

Rebel guerrilla cavalry in squads pervade Webster, Davis and Henderson Counties, Ky. Gen. Boyle has sent forces after them, with orders to put every one to the sword.

Cairo, Thursday, July 3.

The guerrillas tore up the track east of Grand Junction a day or two since, and captured seventy to eighty prisoners.

Col. Pride, of Gen. Grant's Staff, and Capt. McMichael, of Gen. Smith's Staff, narrowly escaped, and have arrived there.

POLICY OF THE REBEL LEADERS.

Memphis, Monday, June 30.

The Avalanche of this morning has an editorial based upon information that a new programme has been determined upon by the Confederate leaders, who, nothing abashed by previous discomfiture, are preparing themselves for a tremendous effort. They consider that the territory recently given up has weakened the North, and correspondingly strengthened the South. They expect to hold Richmond and Virginia, but if they are forced to yield them, they have no idea of giving up, but will fight to the last, and when they can fight no longer, instead of surrendering and having their property confiscated and themselves disfranchised, they will make a direct proposition to France and England to become a colony or appendage. If this alternative is forced upon them they will strive to become the subjects of Napoleon rather than England. The Avalanche gives the above as the almost certain policy of the Confederate leaders, and as Dr. Foulkes is known to be one of the best informed men in the South, considerable credit may be attached to this plan.

ARMY AND NAVY NEWS.

To-day the Army and Navy quarters in the vicinity of New-York, take a holiday to celebrate the glorious "Fourth." The Army salute will be fired from Fort Columbus, the Navy one from the Cobb dock at the Navy-yard, the receiving ship North Carolina not being used as a "celebrator" any more. The French frigate Gassendi has arrived in time to fire a salute, which she will do at noon, it being the duty of Commodore Pauldinge to inform the commanding officer of that vessel beforehand, of the jubilee, which we presume he did. The frigate Sabine, 50, the steam corvette Adirondack, the North Carolina, Connecticut, Supply and Relief, will dress ship and air their buntings. The marines and sailors will have their extra dinners, but it is not certain whether at their own or Uncle Sam's expense. All recruiting business stops to-day.

The following are the latest movements ordered of United States men-of-war: The steam gunboat Tioga sailed on Wednesday, from Boston, with sealed orders; the steam gunboat Adirondack is to leave this port to-morrow on her trial-trip; the steam gunboat Seminole is to be put out of commission to-day, at the Brooklyn Navy-yard; the brig-of-war Bainbridge, which arrived from Fortress Monroe a few days since, was turned over to the Navy-yard authorities yesterday, "unmanned," and her crew transferred to the North Carolina.

The splendid little gunboats that are doing so much good service in the waters of Eastern Virginia are as follows:

Wachusett, (new, navy built,) Mahaska, (newly built,) Galena, (iron-clad,) Aroostook, (newly built,) Monitor, (the Monitor,) Port Royal, (newly built,) Maratanza, Jacob Bell and Dragon, not built for regular naval craft. The Crocodile, Corwin and Marblehead remain at West Point for the present. The Currituck, Commodore Barney, Morse and Tobago have been sent to reinforce the first-named regular craft on the James River.

Arrival of the U. S. Steamer Daylight.

The U. S. steamer Daylight, Commander Sam'l. Lockwood, from Beaufort, N. C., arrived at this port yesterday evening. She left Beaufort on June 30, at 9 A. M. She has been in commission since June 7, 1861, and during that time has been actively engaged in blockading and other service in the North Atlantic Blockading Squadron. The Daylight was flagship at the reduction of Fort Macon, and has since that time been lying at Beaufort harbor. During her cruise she has taken seven prizes, and rescued the ship John Clark from sinking, and [illegible] of the crew to Key West. The following is a list of the officers of the Daylight:

Commander, Samuel Lockwood; Lieutenant, D. Lynam; Master, Arthur Sullivan; Acting Master, Henry Ingersoll; Acting Master's Mate, Wm. Wolcott; Acting Ensign, Thos. Y. Mulligan; Assistant Surgeon, Charles O. Morgan; Acting Master's Mate, Wm. W. Smith, Charles Allmore.

The Indians in Utah Again Troublesome.

Sweet Water Station, Tuesday, July 1.

The Indians are again troublesome, cutting the telegraph line between here and Pacific Springs before then they can be mended. Troops start tonight in pursuit of them, supposed to be a war party of Sioux, 45 in number.

Salt Lake, Monday, June 30, via Fort Bridger, Tuesday, July 1.

Saturday afternoon the Indians attacked Lieut. Gunn's party of eighteen men, near Rocky Ridge. Two whites and one Indian were killed. It is supposed they cut the telegraph line. The same afternoon the Indians were seen along the road from Pacific Springs to Sweet Water. Col. Collins says they are Sioux and Cheyennes, and number about 400. He could not cross Sweet Water to follow. The stage is stopped for the present. Indians are seen lurking in the hills about Pacific Springs.

Cheyenne, Wednesday, July 2.

A message to J. H. Ward, President of the Pacific Telegraph Company, dated Salt Lake City, July 2, is substantially the same as the dispatch dated Sweetwater 1st. The telegraph line is promptly repaired as fast as broken by the War Party of Indians, and no pains will be spared to keep the line working.

Sale of Prize Cotton at Boston.

Boston, Wednesday, July 2.

An auction sale of Mobile cotton, taken from the prize schooners Southern Independence, Charleston and Victoria, took place to-day. Prices ranged from 32½c. @ 37½c., according to quality. The whole sale amounted to $126,000.

Mr. Seward, and the gentlemen accompanying him, left this afternoon for Columbus, Ohio.

Large Fire at Newark, N. J.

Newark, N. J., Thursday, July 3.

Watts' Passaic Machine Works on Ogden-street, were destroyed by fire during last night, with a large amount of machinery, patterns and other stock. The loss is estimated at $20,000, and the insurance is $12,000. The origin of the fire is not known.

READ. READ. READ.

Danville, Pa., June 2, 1862.

Dr. Wm. H. Ganzo—Dear Sir: In February, 1861, I was afflicted with the sugar diabetes, and for five months I passed more than two gallons of water in twenty-four hours. I was obliged to get up as often as ten or twelve times during the night, and in five months I lost about fifty pounds in weight. During the month of July, 1861, I procured two bottles of Constitution Water, and in two days after using it I experienced relief, and after taking two bottles I was entirely cured, soon after regaining my usual good health. Yours, truly,

J. V. L. DE WITT.

PROGRAMME OF ARRANGEMENTS,

FOR THE CELEBRATION OF THE APPROACHING ANNIVERSARY OF OUR NATIONAL INDEPENDENCE, JULY 4TH, 1862, UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE MUNICIPAL AUTHORITIES OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK.

The Joint Special Committee appointed to make arrangements for properly celebrating the approaching Anniversary of our National independence, have decided upon the following:

HEADQUARTERS FIRST DIVISION, N. Y. S. M.,
NEW-YORK, June 16, 1862.

GENERAL ORDERS, No. 3.—The part of the Division remaining in the City will parade on the Fourth of July next, to celebrate the Anniversary of the Declaration of American Independence and the vindication of the Union.

The Division line will be formed on Fortieth-street, with right on Broadway, at ninth o'clock, A. M. precisely.

A marching salute will be paid to the Mayor and Common Council in front of the City Hall at ten o'clock A. M.

Brigadier-General Spicer will cause the National Standard to be displayed from the Battery, and the morning salute to be fired at sunrise by a detachment from the First Brigade.

Brigadier-General Yates will direct a National salute to be fired from the Battery at noon, by a detachment from the Second Brigade.

The Commissary-General will furnish commissaries for the salutes under the requisition of the proper officers.

Fourteenth-street and Broadway are hereby designated as the Parade Ground of the Division, on the Fourth of July, until the column shall have passed the City Hall.

Major Henry S. Fearing and Major Edmund B. Wade have been appointed volunteer aids to the Major-General. They will be recognized and obeyed accordingly.

The Division Staff will assemble on the Fourth, at the quarters of the Major-General, at 7 o'clock A. M., at which hour and place Captain Otto's Troop will report for escort duty. By order of

CHARLES W. SANDFORD,
Major-General Commanding.

W. E. TOWNSEND, A. D. C.

NO. 59 WALL-ST.
ISSUE COMMERCIAL AND TRAVELERS CREDITS FOR USE IN THIS COUNTRY AND ABROAD

SALE JUNCTION RAILROAD COMPANY'S BONDS.—The Junction Railroad Company invite proposals in writing, for the purchase of the whole or any part of five hundred thousand dollars First Mortgage Six Per Cent. Coupon Bonds.

The mortgage is made to Alexander Henry, Esq., Trustee, and will be due July 1, 1862. It is secured upon the entire railroad and property of the Company (lying on the west side of Schuylkill, between Kaighns and Gray's Ferry). Its terms provide for a sinking fund of fifteen thousand dollars per year, to be invested in these Bonds, or in the First Mortgage Bonds of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company, or in the loans of the United States, or of the State of Pennsylvania, at the discretion of this Board of Directors.

The Bonds are for one thousand dollars each. Their principal is guaranteed by endorsement of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, the Philadelphia and Trenton Railroad Company, the Philadelphia and Baltimore Railroad Company, on the back of each bond in the following words, viz.:

"We do all men by these presents, that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore Railroad Company, and the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, and each of them, for a valuable consideration, to them paid by the Junction Railroad Company, do hereby (in pursuance of the power and authority conferred by two Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, approved respectively the twenty-third day of March, A. D., 1861, and the twelfth day of April, A. D., 1861, and of every other power) severally and jointly and severally guarantee to the lawful holder of the within Bond the punctual payment of the principal and interest thereof, when and as the same shall become due and payable according to the terms of said Bond or of the terms and conditions of the indenture of mortgage therein mentioned and given to secure the same."

In witness whereof, said Companies have hereunto affixed their corporate seals respectively, duly attested, and have caused the signatures of their President respectively to be hereunto written this second day of June, Anno Domini, eighteen hundred and sixty-two.

Proposals for the Bonds will be required as follows:

The first instalment of ten per cent. will be payable on the first day of August, and ten per cent. additional on the first of each succeeding month until the whole is paid in.

Proposals will be addressed to CHAS. E. SMITH, Receiver, No. 237 South 4th-st., until Monday, July 21.

Each proposal will state the total number or amount of the bonds wanted, and the price offered per bond of one thousand dollars.

The Company reserves to itself the right to accept or reject the whole or any part of any proposition received; and proposals will be notified of the acceptance of their proposals within one week from the opening of the bids.

JOSEPH LESLEY,
Secretary, Junction Railroad Company.

CORPORATION LOAN OF $500,000 FOR THE RELIEF OF FAMILIES OF VOLUNTEER SOLDIERS.—The Common Council of the City of New-York, passed an ordinance approving of the Act of Assembly, on the 14th of June, instant, authorized the borrowing, upon the credit of the Corporation, the further sum of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars, to be applied in "Aiding to support the families of the soldiers from this City, who are engaged in defending the integrity of the Nation." Books are now open for subscriptions to said loan will be opened at the Comptroller's Office, on SATURDAY, June 28, and continue open until MONDAY, July 7, unless the whole amount shall be sooner taken.

The subscribers to said loan will be required to pay the amount of their subscriptions to the City Chamberlain, in sums of twenty dollars, within three days after the date thereof, and on presenting the Chamberlain's receipts for such payments to the Comptroller, they will be entitled to receive an equal amount of Bonds, known as "Volunteer's Family Aid Bonds, No. 3," of the Corporation of the City of New-York.

The said Bonds will be issued in sums to suit—not less than One Hundred Dollars—and will bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, on the first days of January and July, and the principal will be payable on the first day of July, 1868. They will be exempt from taxation, and the interest of the Bonds will be books kept in the Comptroller's Office.

ROBERT T. HAWS, Comptroller.

DR. SWEET'S INFALLIBLE LINIMENT.

The best remedial remedy known. Prepared from the receipt of Dr. Stephen Sweet, of Connecticut, the great natural bone-setter. Try it. For sale everywhere. Price 25 cents. MORGAN & ALLEN, Agents, No. 46 Cliff-st.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE shortest possible time, by DR. WARD & CO., No. 13 Laight-st., near Canal, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. By his special experience in this much-neglected branch of medical science he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the shortest time. Patients have seen Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks. Gleet (or Gonorrhœa of long standing, where all internal remedies have failed) permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance, failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to Dr. WARD & CO., No. 13 Laight-st., the only place.

DR. COBBETT, MEMBER OF THE N. Y. University, (Medical College,) and Royal College of Surgeons, London, has removed from No. 19 Duane-st. to his present very convenient suite of offices, at No. 23 Centre-st., between Chambers and Reade sts., with a private entrance at No. 6 City Hall-place. Here he can be consulted with the most honorable confidence on all diseases affecting the urinary organs; thirty years in his present specialty, (three of which have been at the Hospitals of this City,) enable him to guarantee a cure in every case undertaken, or make no charge. Strictures of the urethra, impotency, seminal weakness, &c., treated on the most scientific principles. N. B.—As a proof of Dr. C.'s qualifications, he would call special attention to his Diplomas, which can be seen in his office.

DR. COOPER, NO. 14 DUANE-ST. MAY BE confidently consulted on all diseases of a private nature. A practice of 20 years, devoted to the treatment and cure of Syphilitic, Mercurial, and diseases of a delicate nature, enables Dr. C. to make speedy and permanent cures, no matter of how long standing the case may be. Strictures of the urethra and seminal weakness, brought on by a secret habit, effectually cured. The victims of misplaced confidence, who have been misled by quack advertisements, can call on Dr. C. with the certainty of being radically cured. N. B.—Dr. C. is a qualified physician and surgeon, and a member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New-York. Office hours from 8 A. M. to 9 P. M.

IMPORTANT TO THE MARRIED AND THOSE ABOUT TO BE MARRIED.—Dr. A. M. MAUCHEAU, Professor of Diseases of Women, has just published the 160th edition of the above book, entitled "THE MARRIED WOMAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION," strictly intended for those whose health or circumstances forbid a too rapid increase of family. Price $1. Sold at his office, No. 129 Liberty-st., New-York; or can be sent by mail, free of postage, to any part of the United States and Canada, by inclosing $1, and addressing Box No. 1,226 New-York City. NATIONAL LOSSES BEFORE RICHMOND.

BOSTON, Thursday, July 3.

A special dispatch to the Journal, states that Col. FOWLE T. WEBB, of the Massachusetts Sixteenth, was killed in the Richmond battle. Col. EDWARD W. HINKS, of the Nineteenth Massachusetts, was wounded. The reported loss of the Twenty-second Massachusetts is 350 in killed, wounded and missing; that of the Massachusetts Ninth, 311. The Eleventh also suffered severely, having only four line officers left.

The National lost is stated at 15,000. The loss of officers in the Massachusetts regiments engaged is very great.

WOUNDED SOLDIERS AT BALTIMORE.

BALTIMORE, Thursday, July 3.

The steamer Daniel Webster has arrived here, with a large number of soldiers wounded in the recent great battle before Richmond.

REBEL ACCOUNTS OF THE PRELIMINARY FIGHTING.

From the Richmond Whig, of Friday last, (27th inst.,) we obtain the following interesting items:

THE BATTLE OF THURSDAY.

"Yesterday afternoon an engagement opened a few miles northeast of the city, which we have no reason to doubt is the beginning of the great conflict that is to decide the fate of this capital, and, perhaps, of the Confederacy itself. The cannonading, till an hour or more after dark, was quick and heavy, exceeding in rapidity and volume that at Seven Pines. Not a word from the field has reached the city. The reason probably is, that the attack was made and the fight waged on the enemy's rear. The city is confident and calm.

LATER.

Information came to hand last night that the attack was made by Gen. A. P. HILL's Division on the enemy's position near the Meadow Bridge, about 5 o'clock. The enemy recoiled, leaving a battery, as is reported, in the hands of our troops.

Retreating about two miles, the enemy made a stand in their intrenchments at Mechanicsville, and again our troops drove them from their position, and again they were made to retire. The battle was still raging when the last accounts came from the army of McCLELLAN's army, leaving there last night. The battle was still raging furiously. May this morning's sun be our sun of Austerlitz.

THE FIGHT ON WEDNESDAY.

We are permitted to take the following extract from a letter from a member of a company of the Forty-eighth North Carolina Regiment, dated yesterday:

"We have had nothing to eat since yesterday morning, and then only a slice of bread and a cup of coffee for each of us. We had to fix all day in the sun. The Yankees were shelling us most of the time, but did not hurt us. About 2 o'clock P. M., we were ordered to fix bayonets and charge the Yankees—that is, three companies of our regiment (the Twelfth Virginia, the other position being held as a reserve and support for our artillery. We had to charge across a wheat field about three-quarters of a mile. The Yankees were under cover, in a dense wood, and at least eight to our one.

"We crossed the field with a yell, and so quick and unexpected was the movement that the Yankees broke and fled, but not until many of them had been made to bite the dust. I don't mean that our battalion did all this. We were nobly aided by the Forty-eighth North Carolina and Fourth Georgia. The woods were filled with the dead and wounded Yankees. Thirteen of our company were killed, but seven were wounded; Sergeant Wm. Woodson, in the knee; R. Bryson, through the lungs, mortally; J. B. Old, in calf of leg; A. Gathwright, in small of back, seriously; John Leatmont, in arm; Sergeant John E. Loughlin, slightly, in leg; David Wilson, in foot, slightly. We took some twenty or thirty prisoners.

"We have been unable to obtain any further particulars of the fighting in the early part of the day, and until the Generals in command concede some facilities to reporters and correspondents of the Press, will think it best to choose for whatever news we may obtain from the lines.

The Forty-eighth North Carolina, alluded to in the above extract, is a new regiment, commanded by Col. HILL. The regiment marched from the Capitol-square, Wednesday morning, about 8 o'clock, and went into action soon after reaching the lines. About twenty of the regiment were killed, and a considerable number wounded, including Major HOLTZ, who was struck in the right foot by a ball.

Early Wednesday morning 'Long Tom' again operated on the Yankee breastworks, north of the Williamsburgh road, and demolished a considerable portion of the intrenchments. The Yankees fled in dismay from the shells of this powerful engine. The gun was manned, we learn, by Capt. SNOWDEN ANDERSON's Artillerists, the infantry support being a portion of Gen. PENDER's Brigade."

THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT FIRST IN THE FIELD.

In view of the menacing attitude of the Yankees and their degraded foreign mercenaries in front of our city, the President of the Confederate States has, we learn, communicated to the heads of the different departments a request that their respective employes should form themselves into a battalion, or into separate companies, to cooperate with our fellow-citizens in the defense of Richmond, in such manner, and in connection with the military authorities, as may be prescribed by the Secretary of War.

Yesterday, and last night, the patriotic call was answered in the General Post-office Department. About early dawn on the day a meeting of all the employes connected with the department was convened by the direction of the Postmaster-General Gen. Hon. H. St. Geo. Offutt, and was organized by calling the meeting to the chair. After eloquently explaining the object of the meeting, and communicating the wishes of the President, a company was at once formed, to which no name has yet been given, though we are informed it will probably be the Rosgen Rifles. The following are the officers elected: Captain, JOHN L. HARRELL, Alabama; First Lieutenant, B. PULLEN, North Carolina; Second Lieutenant, J. FRANK BOOTH, Maryland; Third Lieutenant, T. D. ANDERSON, Alabama.

GEN. GREGG'S BRIGADE.

Gen. GREGG's Brigade is now composed of the following regiments, which average over 1,000 men each: First South Carolina Volunteers, Col. D. H. HAMILTON; Twelfth South Carolina Volunteers, Col. B. EDWARDS; Thirteenth South Carolina Volunteers, Lieut.-Col. D. EARNEST; Fourteenth South Carolina Volunteers, Col. S. McGOWAN; Rifle Regiment South Carolina Volunteers, Col. J. FORNEY MARSHALL. To this brigade two batteries are attached—Col. MARMADUKE JOHNSON's Richmond Battery, and Capt. CARNEGAN's Richmond Battery.

FROM PENSACOLA.

Late advices from Pensacola state that quite a number of Federal vessels are lying in the harbor, and that there is a pretty large force of rebels and rather a dense day force of well men in and near the city. The enemy have thrown up formidable intrenchments around the city, extending from the beach above and below, and with but one or two passages through which admission or exit may be had. These entrances are strictly sentinoled.

ANOTHER BATTALION.

Secretary of War, GEORGE W. RANDOLPH, has requested Gov. LETCHER to allow the militia called out in the city of Richmond to volunteer in the battalion authorized to be raised by Capt. ELLIOTT, for local service within the circuit of the redoubts around Richmond and Manchester.

The battalion will consist of five companies of one hundred men each; will be mustered into the Confederate service, and will, in addition to their pay in the Confederate army, receive a bounty from the City Government of $20 per month to each non-commissioned officer and private.

They will be charged with the important duty of guarding the bridges, prisons, public and private property, and with maintaining order in the city.

WOUNDED SOLDIERS.

The hospitals in and around Charlottesville are filled with the wounded soldiers of JACKSON's command, and they continue to arrive.

THE NEWS FROM RICHMOND.

Effect of the Times Account of the Battle.

The first and only thorough and reliable account of the fearful struggle through which the Army of the Potomac has just passed, was published in the TIMES of yesterday.

The details fell upon the community with the most disheartening effect, and produced a shock which has never before been felt.

Probably the first thing done on Thursday morning by nine-tenths of the citizens of New-York was to open and glance through the paper that they might learn of the state of affairs with the army. Those who had the TIMES were informed; others were not.

All over the City, in Brooklyn, and Williamsburgh, and Jersey City, the greatest excitement prevailed. Hope, that the account was exaggerated, struggled with the fear that all was not yet told, and the most gloomy forebodings were uppermost in the minds of the majority.

The TIMES office was thronged by those who had heard of, but had not seen the account, and thousands of extras were sold in addition to the vast regular edition of the morning.

One of the correspondents of the paper was known to be in the City, and the editorial rooms were besieged by anxious parents, brothers and wives, who sought confirmation of the reports concerning the fate of their relatives, who desired to know the worst, and to be kept from further suspense about their friends.

Some of these went away rejoicing, for of the safety of their friends they were assured; while the sad countenances of others were made sadder yet by the narration of details which placed the death or wounding of their loved ones facts beyond further question.

At a public resort in Brooklyn there was gathered quite a little crowd of gentlemen to whom one of the group was reading the graphic account given in the TIMES by "E. S." Until the description was ended all kept quiet, and then one person said, "Well, that may be so, but these first accounts are always greatly exaggerated, you know, and I think we'll find matters better than this correspondent says." To this a well-known clergyman of the City, who formed one of the listeners said, "Gentlemen, that letter is signed 'E. S.,' and is from a man whose probity and veracity are unquestioned, who writes the truth and nothing else. Whenever I see a statement signed by him, I know what to believe, and there is no use in blinking these facts. We are badly whipped, and all we have to do is to rise up en masse, make another effort, let the Government see that we are in earnest, that we mean war, and I think we will have no cause to regret it."

On the ferryboat Union, the passengers were gathered about three gentlemen, who were excitedly discussing the effect which the disastrous news will have upon recruiting. Said one: "If the account in the TIMES of to-day is correct—and I see no reason to doubt it, for it is full of details—I'll bet my head that LINCOLN not only won't get 300,000 men, but he won't get 30,000 men." "Nonsense," said his friend; "the news of the defeat of the army of the Potomac will sting our people like the bite of a serpent. It was so after the Bull Run defeat; and I am of the opinion that men will crowd the recruiting stations, anxious and eager to show to the world generally, and the South particularly, that this rebellion must be stopped."

At this one of the outside listeners said, interrupting: "For one, I believe in Mayor WOOD's words, though not with the meaning he desired to convey. I believe we must have a change of measures or a change of men. Either the President must announce that he is determined to go to work in earnest, or else that he is disappointed in the way this campaign is managed, and will put some one else at the head of the army. Otherwise, I believe he will get no rallying crowds." This was the sentiment of nine-tenths of those with whom we conversed, and seemed to be the prevalent feeling of that particular place.

In Wall-street and Broad-street, and everywhere and at every corner; in each the one topic was the "great battle," the "great battle." Speculations as to the course of France and England, as to the dread possibility of further disaster, as to McCLELLAN's next movement, and so on, ad infinitum, were current and indulged in by all.

They would have been glad to disbelieve the story; but it was told too well, entered too minutely into details and facts, to be set aside, and, as a consequence, was credited universally.

In the Park a company of youthful cadets attracted a large and admiring crowd—a crowd of the floating population from whose lips fell many curious remarks about the battle and its results. Many were talking of going into the army at once, others were fighting (verbally) about the "strategic movement," others blamed the President for not giving the young Napoleon more troops, others hurrahed yet for the old flag, and predicted its eventual success, and others yet did not hesitate to avow themselves believers in the Star of the South to this extent—that having won so great a victory they were deserving of recognition at once.

At CROZIER & DUFFY's the usual 12 o'clock gathering convened at about 10 A. M. Blood ran high—McClellan and Anti-McClellan, confidence and suspicion, sorrow and slimly-disguised joy, had their consultations and their squabbles, as together they took the mutual "smash."

In many places we heard the question of possible and probable recognition discussed. Those who two weeks since would not dare to say a word about the impolicy of the peninsular movements, whose mouths were closed concerning the rights of the South, did not hesitate in a certain half-and-half way to express the opinion that so soon as the news could be gotten across the ocean the Confederacy will be recognized. Saying, too, that they really could not see upon what ground it could be denied them.

Bull Run they say was a Union rout, Corinth a mismanaged occupation, Bell's Bluff a slaughter-house, Williamsburgh a victory on paper, and the last movement a terrible disturbance of the confidence of the people. Upon whom to lay the responsibility so set of men agreed. The plans of McCLELLAN, the inaction of STANTON, the non-reinforcement by the President, the possible weakness of the troops. Who? What? Where? No one knew, no one could decide, though every one had his opinion and his say.

It was the good fortune of the TIMES to present the first and best account of the battle; it was all the [illegible] of the news, and it was [illegible] information, which if made public, would console the great grief of the people, or overwhelm them with despair.

The Effect of the War News in Boston.

BOSTON, Thursday, July 3.

The war news received up to 2 o'clock to-day caused a temporary depression in the Stock Market. United States 7 3-10 opened at 105¾, fell to 105, and closed at 105½. After the Board there was better feeling, and large lots of Government loan sold at 101 to 101½.

THE NATIONAL ANNIVERSARY.

THE CELEBRATION OF THE FOURTH

Military Parade—The Pyrotechnic Displays—Orators of the Day, &c.

To-day is the Eighty-sixth Anniversary of our National Independence. Notwithstanding the war and the great interest our citizens feel therein, arrangements for the proper celebration of the day have not been forgotten. At sunrise a salute will be fired at the Battery, and the National Standard hoisted; at noon a National salute of 34 guns will be fired. At 6 o'clock A. M., those regiments forming a part of the First Division, not absent at the seat of war, will form a line on Fourteenth-street, near Broadway. The following is a list of the regiments belonging to the First Division, National Guard, S. N. Y., with those corps that are absent, mentioned:

FIRST BRIGADE,
Commanded by Col. PORTER, of Third Hussars.
First Regiment Cavalry, Col. U. U. PRICE.
Third Regiment Hussars, Capt. JOHN BUSKE.
Second and Seventy-first Regiments of Infantry, at the seat of war.

SECOND BRIGADE,
Commanded by Brig.-Gen. CHARLES YATES.
Fourth Regiment Artillery, Col. HENCKEN.
Fifth Regiment Infantry, Col. BURNS.
Sixth Regiment Infantry, Maj. RAPHENS.

THIRD BRIGADE, GEN. HALL.
Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Fifty-fifth Regiments, all at seat of war.

FOURTH BRIGADE, GEN. EWEN.
Eleventh, Twelfth, Sixty-ninth and Seventy-ninth Regiments of Infantry, all absent at seat of war.

Maj.-Gen. SANDFORD will be in command. On the formation of line, the Division will pass down Broadway to the City Hall, and there be reviewed by the Mayor and Common Council at 10 o'clock. A number of juvenile soldiers called the "Cuban Institute Cadets," from New-Hamburgh, will join in the procession.

ORATIONS.

At the Cooper Institute a patriotic meeting will be held, at 10 o'clock A. M., under the especial care of the members of the Common Council. His Honor the Mayor will preside. The following is the order of exercises.

Music.....Band.

The members of Tammany Society hold a meeting during the morning, and at 1 o'clock the Grand Sachem, NELSON J. WATERBURY, will deliver the opening address. Judge CHARLES P. DALY will then follow with the principal oration. The Declaration of Independence will be read by Mr. GEORGE MCLEAN; ELIHA COOK's "Ode to WASHINGTON" will be recited by Mr. HOSEA B. PERKINS, and Mr. HENRY W. MORROW will read an original patriotic poem. The celebration at the Wigwam will conclude with a dinner, enlivened with toasts and music.

At the City Hall, the Society of Cincinnati meet at 12 o'clock, when the Hon. HAMILTON FISH presides.

RANDALL'S ISLAND.

The Commissioners of Charities and Corrections have so arranged that the children on Randall's Island shall endeavor to celebrate the "Fourth" with a proper amount of patriotism. Out of their private purses the Commissioners have furnished torpedoes and crackers, and have arranged the following programme for the children to deliver:

Opening Address.....Master M. Daily.
Chant—"America".....All the Children.
Address.....President Draper.
Song—"Where Liberty Dwells"....All the Children.
Reading of the Declaration of Independence.

Dialogue.....Masters Thomas and Gillespie.
Song—"Freedom's Rally".....The Girls.
Finale—"Ellsworth Avengers."

THE PYROTECHNIC DISPLAY.

The display of fireworks will be equal, if it does not surpass anything of the kind ever attempted in this City. Of the $8,000 appropriated by the Common Council for the proper celebration of the day, $6,000 have been expended upon fireworks. Messrs. EDGE, of Jersey City, are the manufacturers. At dusk they will be let off at the following places:

City Hall	$250	Franklin-street and West Broadway	$250

TRINITY CHIMES.

For the first time in many years, New-Yorkers will miss the chimes of "Trinity," on this our National Holiday. It was the intention to have given an unusually long and varied programme, Mr. JAMES E. AYLIFFE, the well-known ringer, having prepared one for the occasion. "Man proposes, God disposes." At the commencement of the week Mr. AYLIFFE was taken sick, and is unable to leave his room. Consequently, as he is the only man in New-York that can [illegible] the bells, all hope of ringing them must be abandoned.

ILLUMINATIONS.

Many of our principal buildings will be illuminated. TAYLOR's saloon on Broadway will be brilliantly lighted up. On the front of the building are thirty-four stars, each one of which when lighted will have nearly a hundred jets of gas, making the street in the vicinity nearly as light as day.

EXCURSIONS.

Those who wish to escape from the heat and dust of the City and the noise of fire-crackers, have an admirable opportunity for doing so. By referring to our advertising columns it will be found that there are excursions to all places of popular resort within an easy distance of New-York. In most cases the excursionists will have returned in ample time to witness the display of fireworks in the evening.

THE THEATRES.

Managers of theatres and places of amusement are doing their best to amuse our holiday folk to-day. Performances at nearly all the houses will be given twice a day, afternoon and evening. At Niblo's Cremorne Gardens, one of the most delightful places in the City to visit, performances will take place every hour. Mlle. PARM will sing the National Anthem; Señorita CUBAS appears in a new ballet, and several other performances equally delightful will take place.

Miss MAGGIE MITCHELL, at Laura Keene's Theatre appears in two new pieces, both afternoon and evening. So great has been the desire to see this charming actress in something else besides "Fanchon," that no doubt the house will be crowded.

At the Winter Garden, two grand entertainments will be given; in the afternoon, at 2; in the evening, at 8 P. M. Union songs, sentiments, processions, and tableaux are promised.

A performance takes place, both afternoon and evening, at Mary Provost's Olympic, when "Andy Blake," "Nature and Philosophy," and a new play called "Unequal Marriage," will be given.

This evening three pieces will be played by the FLORENCES at Wallack's Theatre. "The Returned Volunteer," "Thrice Married," and "Lord Finigan." In the second piece Mrs. FLORENCE assumes five or six different characters.

Miss CAROLINE RICHINGS appears this evening as Pauline, in the musical drama of the "National Guard," at Niblo's Garden. It will be followed by the splendid dancing of GALETTI; the whole to conclude with the National allegory of "Washington."

Performances take place afternoon and evening at CHRISTY's Opera-house, No. 585 Broadway. GEORGE CHRISTY is one of the funniest and best of Ethiopian minstrels on the stage.

In the lecture-room at BARNUM's performances take place hourly throughout the day. The American Lambert, weighing 695 pounds, and Miss JANE CAMPBELL, weighing 618 pounds, will also be on exhibition together with Commodore NUTT; Ned, the learned seal; and the other curiosities of the Museum.

The National Anniversary in Brooklyn.

The celebration exercises pertaining to the National Anniversary were commenced on Wednesday in the Public Schools, and were continued through yesterday. The exercises at all the schools were patriotic and interesting, and particularly at School No. 1, corner of Concord and Adams streets, where thirty young misses read in unison the Declaration of Independence.

The programme for the city celebration to-day is announced as follows: A National salute will be fired on Fort Greene at sunrise, at noon and at sunset. At the same hours in the day the bells throughout the city will be rung for half an hour. In the evening there will be a display of fireworks, under direction of the Common Council Committee, at Fort Greene, and upon the Union Base Ball grounds in the Eastern District. At Fort Greene the display will consist of the following pieces:

GRAND SEAL OF MALTA.

This splendid piece opens with a hexagon vertical wheel, with crimson and green centre, mutating to the above design, composed of beautiful colored lance work in the most elegant and chaste manner, mutating to a magnificent battery of crimson, green, blue and yellow fires in splendid profusion.

PERUVIAN CROSS.

This splendid piece commences with a brilliant sun of Chinese and Maltese fires, with crimson rose in the centre, changing to a green centre, mutating to the Peruvian cross of brilliant Chinese gerbs and splendid colored saxons, heavily marooned.

INDIAN PALMETTO.

This beautiful piece of pyrotechny commences with hexagon vertical wheel of Chinese and radiant fires, opening with splendid green centre and crimson centre-piece, mutating to the Indian palmetto of dazzling brilliancy, composed of Chinese gerbs, interspersed with saxons, richly colored, terminating with a feu-de-joie!

TRIBUTE OF CERES AND POLKA DANCE.

This elegant and new piece in the pyrotechnic art commences with a Hexagon Vertical Wheel of Maltese fires, with crimson and yellow rose, changing to the Tribute of Ceres, composed of brilliant Chinese gerbes, forming a beautiful cross-fire, inclosing Saxon rosettes, and terminating with maroon explosions.

GLORY OF MEXICO.

This superb piece of fireworks commences with a vertical Hexagon wheel of Chinese, radiant, Japanese and Maltese fires, decorated with crimson and green centres, mutating to a splendid glory of brilliant Chinese fires.

THE PRAIRIE ROSE

Opens with a vertical wheel, in various colored fires, changes to a beautiful prairie rose, concludes with golden fire, reported.

VULCAN'S DELIGHT.

This splendid piece of pyrotechny commences with a sexagon vertical wheel of radiant and Japanese fires and colored rosettes, mutating to the appropriate design called Vulcan's Delight, composed of splendid colored Saxony, Chinese and Japanese fires, forming a most beautiful figure, heavily marooned.

GRAND MOSAIC BATTERY.

Composed of Greek and Roman candles, interspersed with mines of serpents and marooned battery.

GALLOPADE OF SERPENTS.

An extensive turning piece. The centre portion of the device will represent four large serpents, each introducing four smaller ones, turning reversely, assuming a variety of the most lively and fanciful changes; the centre will display a vertical wheel, on a new construction, with various colored flames; the whole concluding with a display of brilliant gerbs, reported.

KALEIDOSCOPE.

This magnificent revolving piece opens with two wheels in contrary directions, with an opaque centre, which suddenly is filled with globes of colored fires, forming and changing each instant to beautiful figures, of all colors and shapes.

UNION.

This beautiful piece opens with a vertical wheel with chameleon centre, changing to a star in diamond lacework, between the points of which will be the word "Union," mutating to a splendid sun of rayonant fires, thirty feet in diameter, with maroon explosions.

PERSIAN ROSE.

Revolving and stationary jets of colored fires, terminating with maroon explosions.

ILLUMINATED BOMBS.

Casting into the air a bomb to the height of 1,000 feet, which explodes, filling the air with colored stars and streamers.

TEMPLE OF LIBERTY.

This chef d'œuvre of pyrotechny begins with an octagon wheel of Chinese, Egyptian and radiant fires, forming all the varied and beautiful changes of the kaleidoscope, mutating to the grand Temple of Liberty, on the dome will be emblazoned in silver lance-work, Union and Constitution, and beneath this, from the capital of one column to the capital of the other, the word "Freedom." The arch will be supported by columns of stars, interspersed with jets of varied colored fires, showing the base, shaft and capitals in bold relief. From the apex of the dome will float the Stars and Stripes in appropriate colors, the whole mutating to an immense diamond and rose piece, running out from the side of the shafts on each side, composed of gerbs of Chinese and brilliants formed in diamond lattice-work, terminating with grand flights of fire, maroons and explosions filling the air with colored stars and streamers, forming one of the grandest and most extensive pieces ever attempted in pyrotechny, exhibiting at one view, over 10,000 square feet of fire of the most brilliant and beautiful colors known in the art.

At the base ball ground, in the Eastern District, the fireworks will be as follows:

1. The Passion Flower, commencing with a vertical wheel of large dimensions, which changes to a beautiful scroll wheel, which again changes to the Passion Flower, in brilliant lances, and is completed by a revolving intersection of brilliant lancemine, with centre of white, yellow, orange, purple, crimson, blue and green fires, surrounded by a magnificent sun of silver fire, terminating in a grand feu-de-joie.
2. Crimson Illumination.
3. A beautiful Mechanical Piece, commencing with a horizontal wheel, changing to a vertical globe, which, by their combined motions, will represent the annual and diurnal motions of the earth, and showing the various lines in scarlet, green and purple fires.
4. Flowering Aloe, commences with a vertical wheel on a new construction, which changes to the Flowering Aloe, which again changes to a fiery tree, [illegible] 5. The Diamond Piece, [illegible] with a circumference wheel, in purple and yellow changing to the [illegible] and white lances; concluding with a fixed figure, in brilliant fire, reported.
6. A Beautiful Illuminated Piece, in golden lances, representing a large pineapple, adorned with Roman candles casting stars of blue, green, white and purple fires in every possible direction.
7. Gallopade of Serpents, an extensive turning piece. The centre portion of the device will represent four large serpents, each introducing four smaller ones, turning reversely, assuming a variety of the most lively and fanciful changes; the centre will display a vertical wheel, on a new construction, with various colored flames; the whole concluding with a display of brilliant gerbs, reported.
8. The grand volute, beginning with a gem wheel, of various hues and colors, changes to the grand volute, composed of 12 wheels, of every possible color; concludes with a double volute of brilliant fire marooned.
9. A handsome cascade piece, in four mutations; first, a octagonal wheel, in green and gold; second, a tree of Saxon flyers; third, a pyramid of colored wheels; concludes with a cascade, 30 feet in height, in golden shower, reported.
10. The jeweled cross of the Legion of Honor, with editical decorations, enriched with colored fires, the points of the cross adorned with circles of pearl fire, centered with petit stars, and supported by crimson wheels; continuously, a splendid figure in brilliant fire.
11. A most superb and extensive mechanical piece, opening with a Circumfused Wheel, changing to an elegant scroll of silver lance-work, surrounded by extensive revolving suns, forming a moving mass of fire—the whole exhibiting at one view all the various colored fires at present known in the art of pyrotechnics.
12. The grand finale opens with a Grecian Wheel in pink and sardonyx, which changes to a most superb temple of Liberty; on the centre will be placed the motto "Our Union now and Forever;" surrounded with appropriate insignia, and crowned by the Genius of America. Fountains of fire will be placed on each side of the piece, throwing out streams of liquid fire, and fire pumps, casting stars of crimson, white amethyst, purple, orange, jacinth, lilac, violet emerald and gold; concluding with a tremendous discharge of rockets, mines, bombshells, and fiery meteors, filling the air with an appearance of the most sublime grandeur.

There will also be set off at intervals, rockets, bomb shells, colored Bengolas, &c.

There will also be a display of fireworks, got up on private account, at the corner of Myrtle-avenue and Broadway, at the Myrtle-avenue Park, in the Eighth and Ninth Wards, and other sections of the city, by the residents thereof.

An oration will be delivered at Bourouville, and that is the only place in the city where any speaking is announced.

The Sunday Newspaper Train to Albany and Troy.

The Sunday newspaper train on the Hudson River Railroad has evidently proved a decided success. The demand for news along the line of the railway on Sunday exceeds the anticipations of the projectors of the movement, and the more enterprising of the Sunday Press are reaping a harvest in the demand made for papers at the various stations. It is expected the Sunday train will be a permanent institution, and one which the people inhabiting the suburbs will not willingly do away with.

The March of Events is not more striking than is the wonderful superiority in the style and appearance of KNOX's Summer Hats over those of other and less liberal dealers. Gentlemen of good taste and judgment always go to No. 212 Broadway, corner of Fulton-st., to obtain a fashionable chapeau, and it is as far ahead of competition as the telegraph is ahead of a three cent root-beer peddler's donkey.
